U. S. WON'T ACT TO BLOCK NEW FRENCH LOAN

Refinancing Operation Ex-

Washington Believes France
Won't Be Able to Ignore
Obligations

Washington, Sept. 2.—The United States government will interpose no objection to the flotation by the government of France of its proposed $70,000,000 refinancing loan. This does not mean that the government here has modified its position with respect to the lending of money to countries which have not agreed to land their war debts but it does mean that any refinancing operations are regarded as symptomatic of better financial conditions in the country which does the borrowing.

The new French loan has not come officially before the American government but the policy here has been decided upon. As a matter of fact, the desire of France to convert her outstanding loans at an 8 per cent basis to a 6 per cent basis is regarded as natural and as one official remarked "America will not stand in the way of France if she can save 2 per cent interest on her present fixed charges on past loans."

It is recognized moreover, that any saving which the French government accomplishes adds that much more to the French budget as well as adding considerable strength to the future borrowing power. The interest in net earnings proving a good deal of discussion here because officials of the government point out that France will not be able much longer, to withhold payment on the war debt to the American government, while accumulating in America large gold reserves. It is estimated for instance, that France has on deposit in the United States somewhere between $400,000,000 and $600,000,000 and the contention is advanced that a nation with such a big deposit ought certainly to be able to pay at least $30,000,000 a year on the war debt.

There is no indication that the American government will reopen the matter with the French. It is expected, on the other hand, that the French government will not long desire to place itself before the world as having ignored a debt of the size of the French debt to the United States. It is next move, in other words, is expected to come from France.

So far as the American congress is concerned, no action will be taken on the Mellon-Berenger agreement until the French parliament has approved it. The world war debt, refunding of American loans has been dissolved and there is little likelihood that any counter proposition which modifies the Mellon-Berenger agreement in any essential point will be acceptable. There are reasons to believe however, that French reservations to the Mellon-Berenger agreement could be so phrased as to make these reservations acceptable to the American congress.

Although Premier Poincare's diplomatic relations with the United States have never been characterized by much success, it is nevertheless conceded that the French premier has

ASK INJUNCTION TO STOP DEMPSEY-TUNNEY FIGHT

Chicago.—(AP)—A petition for an injunction to stop the proposed Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship fight here Sept. 22, was filed Friday by attorney for William Clements, president of Chicago Coliseum, which once held Dempsey's contract to fight Harry Wills.

The bill cites an injunction obtained last year at Indianapolis, restraining Dempsey perpetually from entering into other agreements to fight any one else until he had fulfilled the terms of the Wills contract. Service was sought on both Dempsey and Tunney before their contest at Philadelphia last year. Process servers were unable to find them.

It is intended to seek a temporary restraining order, the notices calling for the appearance of the defendants on Sept. 6 when a prayer for relief can be made pending a final determination of the issues involved.

PROSECUTOR FLEES PROHIBITION AGENTS

Five Others Arrested for Alleged Activities in Booze-Running Ring

Chicago.—(AP)—Alfred H. Pouse, who was elected state's attorney of McHenry county three years ago on an "ultra dry" ticket, was a fugitive Friday from a warrant charging liquor law violation. Five others have been arrested, including former Sheriff Lester Eddinger of McHenry county and Postmaster N. F. Stellen of Woodstock. The others, said to be resort keepers, are Jacob Bickler, Stephen Hemer and Fred Justen. Two other warrants, besides that naming Pouse, also have been issued.

Pouse, who disappeared Sunday after cashing an $800 salary voucher, left letters saying he would never be back and blaming politics for implicating him in a country-wide beer running racket. According to the government agents the liquor ring controlled all protection on booze-running in the county, and they charged the missing states attorney was head of the conspiracy. Postmaster Stellen and the former sheriff were accused of having been collectors for the ring.

PROBE BRIBE CHARGE

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—While a greatly increased force of prohibition agents was in prospect Friday for the Great Lakes section of the Canadian border, the investigation of treasury officials into the capabilities of Roy C. Lyle, as prohibition administrator for Oregon and Washington, was held in abeyance, awaiting the arrival here of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of liquor law prosecutions, who is to take the case to the supreme court in a case between runners and enforcement agents of Lyle's territory.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, following his previous assertion that the border patrol would be increased from 200 to 400 men, said he would make a substantial increase in the patrol force along the 224 miles of shore front. Thirty additional agents will be assigned to Detroit, he said.

MEXICO WILL ENFORCE LAND LAWS-CALLES

Nation Protecting Foreign Interests—Clergy War Settled, He States

Mexico City.—(AP)—President Calles hopes that an amicable settlement will be reached as to differences that exist between Mexico and the United States over Mexico's land and petroleum legislation.

Voicing the hope in his annual message at the opening session of congress Thursday night, he said Mexico was willing to consider, in a spirit of justice and equity, any concrete cases of aggression that might be presented. Up to the present time, however, he added, there had not been called to the government's attention "concrete actions that evidently constitute aggressions or violations to foreign capital invested in the oil industry" while, on the other hand, foreign capital had shown "activities, the contumacy and disrespect of which no independent country can admit."

END RELIGIOUS WAR

On the religious question he said: "It can be said that the religious conflict caused by the rebellious clergy now has practically concluded, for the laws have been complied with despite the futile resistance of the clergy." "The Mexican people have shown themselves indifferent to the suspension of services. Some church edifices have been dedicated by the government to public uses; priests showing willingness to obey the law have been permitted to exercise their ministry."

Mexico had faithfully met its foreign debt obligations, the president asserted, in spite of bad business conditions and decreased revenues. He vowed that it was the intention of the government to continue to meet these obligations to the full extent of the economic capacity of the country.

MOVIE LOCKOUT STILL ON; STRIKE MAY BE WIDENED

Chicago.—(AP)—The Exhibitors association reported 350 of the 400 movie and vaudeville theatres, closed as a result of labor disputes, Friday named a committee to arbitrate the argument, but leaders of the stage hands and operators unions still refuse to submit their grievances to arbitration. The stage hands are pledged to stand with the projectionists in the strike which is still on.

Chicago.—(AP)—Prospects of seeing a movie in Chicago were no brighter Friday as the lockout of exhibitors against union operators continued effective in all theatres of the Chicago Exhibitors association.

Union officials said they were planning a general strike against all theatres throughout the country affiliated in circuits or by ownership with the Chicago houses.

The Herald-Examiner said it had learned that international heads of the unions had agreed to issue such a general strike order whenever the Chicago unions required it. Other American cities have reported theater difficulties which in some places have resulted in the closing of movie picture houses.

If You Have Flowers For The Sick Call Phone 543

Tomorrow the Appleton Post-Crescent Flower Cars will make one of their last trips of the present season to collect flowers for patients in St. Elizabeth hospital and Riverview sanatorium. In just a few weeks more cold weather will put an end to flower collection for the year but this week there still are lots of flowers in gardens of Appleton people.

Patients at the two institutions look forward to Saturday and the visit of the Flower Cars as the happiest days of the week. The bright flowers drive gloom from their rooms and raise their spirits so that the tender care of the nurses and attendants can produce most efficient results.

Flowers first of all are given to patients who ordinarily receive few if any flowers from their relatives and friends. If there are any flowers left after the rooms of these patients are brightened bouquets are taken to the rooms of the other patients.

Thousands upon thousands of flowers have been collected by the Post-Crescent cars this year. The response of Appleton flower lovers to the appeal for the sick and the bed-ridden several times exceeded the fondest hopes and it is believed that

The fine showing of Wisconsin cattle in capturing the grand senior and junior Holstein championships was made more remarkable Thursday when Guernsey herd of the Fern Dell farm, Green Bay, made a perfect record by taking six outstanding championships awarded to male and female entries.

As usual Milwaukee day Thursday proved to be the biggest day of the fair in point of attendance. Judging in the various departments was almost cleaned up Thursday night.

Benjamin Franklin Manning of the army, began their honeymoon. They were married here Thursday under the ritual of the Methodist Episcopal church at the home of Kenneth Harlan, motion picture actor.

Two Airmen Return to Le Bourget Field When Plane Runs Into Fog

Halifax, N. S.—(AP)—The wireless station at Cape Race, N. J., advised the naval dockyard here Friday afternoon of a message received from the Dutch steamer Bijlendam, stating that at 6 o'clock (Greenwich Meridian time) Friday morning the vessel sighted a white light, probably belonging to an aeroplane, in latitude 39.28 north, longitude 64.43 west. The light was proceeding in an easterly direction.

The position of a white light, thought to be an airplane traveling east, reported by the steamer Bijlendam, would be about 420 miles east southeast of New York.

If the light should prove to be that of the St. Raphael it indicates that she was far south of her course and probably lost her way, as the steamer reported the light moving eastward away from the plane's destination.

BULLETIN

St. Johns, Que.—(AP)—The monoplane Royal Windsor will not be able to hop off before 5 o'clock Friday afternoon, owing to newly-discovered damage to the tail skid, the pilots announced at 11 o'clock.

FUEL SUPPLY GONE

Ottawa, Ont.—(AP)—Anxious to Friday gazed toward the Atlantic and the Newfoundland wilderness to learn the fate of England's flying princess and her two daring companions of the air.

Long overdue in its 2,222 mile flight, the monoplane St. Raphael carrying Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. Frederick F. Minchin, held the attention of two continents as a vanishing hope for its safe arrival gave way to preparation for a hunt for the plane.

The most generous estimates of the plane's fuel supply gave it a flying period of 44 hours, barring accident, but at 10:32, eastern daylight time, Thursday night—the expiration of the estimated fuel limit—no word had been received from the plane in less than two hours. Then at 7:32 (London time, or 2:32 eastern daylight time) Wednesday morning, Captain Hamilton had estimated he would make the trip in 37 hours.

KEEP VAIN LOOKOUT

Lights out setting in the northeast Atlantic coast kept a vain vigil through the night, while radio stations listened intently for messages that did not come.

Throgs at Lindbergh field, the destination of the St. Raphael, waited patiently through the night, for the plane's return. The plane was confident and cheerful despite the absence of news of the plane.

The conviction was general at Harbor Grace, that the plane had gone down probably near one of the Grand banks, a huge area of shoals and reefs, and another theory was that the craft might have gone off its course and landed on some barren and unsettled part of the thousands of miles of wilderness in Newfoundland.

FRENCHMEN RETURN

Le Bourget.—(AP)—Fog hanging heavy over the French countryside, balked the biplane Blue Bird's attempt to fly to New York Friday. The giant plane, manned by Leon Givon and Pierre Corbu, after a beautiful takeoff at 6:21 Friday morning, was back after a hour and a half, and two hours. Then for almost another full hour Givon circled the field, hoping the haze would lighten, but when it remained still thick at 9 o'clock he began emptying his gasoline tanks.

By then the lead had been reduced to less than 2,500 gallons to 4,000 litres (1,050 gallons) and the lightened ship was landed, her pilot and navigator bitterly disappointed over their failure. The Blue Bird had proceeded about 90 miles when she turned back.

Undeterred by the failure of Friday's attempt to fly across the Atlantic, Givon told the Associated Press that he would hop off Saturday if conditions were similar to or better than those of Friday.

TAIL SKID DAMAGED

Windsor, Ont.—(AP)—The monoplane Royal Windsor, enroute to Windsor castle, England, from here, was forced down in a field between St. Johns and St. Johns Que. Thursday night and awaited an opportunity Friday to take off for Great Britain, according to word sent here by Justus Miller, backer of the flight.

ARREST YOUTH IN THEFT OF MONEY FROM HOTEL ROOMS

Policeman Catches Young Man As He Tries to Get Into Room in Eggert Hotel

Police believe they solved a series of petty robberies during the past month with the arrest early Friday morning of James Landers 22 route 1, Appleton. Landers was arrested by Officer Earl Thomas in a hallway at the William Eggert hotel, 301 N. Appleton-st., at 3 o'clock Friday morning.

Theft of small sums of money have been reported several times to police by guests at the Eggert hotel. Roomers had been in the habit of leaving their doors unlocked, according to George T. Prim, chief of police, and in the morning would awaken to find their money had been stolen from their clothes. One roomer reported a loss of $41; another a loss of $25, and another the loss of $5 and a gold Eagle lodge ring. Last Tuesday an alarm clock, necktie, and $5 was taken from a room. Saturday night the took $30 from a trousers pocket while Eggert was asleep.

POLICE CATCH HIM
Officer Thomas was stationed in the hallway of the second floor of the hotel Thursday night and early Friday morning he saw Landers come up the stairs. Landers, according to the officer, had removed his shoes and was proceeding with extreme stealth to try another door when the officer placed him under arrest.

Landers confessed, according to Chief Prim, that he committed the burglaries at the hotel but he says that he replaced the stolen Eagle ring.

In Landers' room at the hotel was found the missing alarm clock and at the time of his arrest he was wearing the necktie which was reported stolen last Tuesday.

FIND CLAIM CHECK
In his pocket at the time of his arrest was a claim check from Specter's jewelry store and a wrist watch. At first Landers claimed that he had bought the wrist watch but after questioning admitted, Chief Prim said, that he stole the watch.

Landers' accomplice in the theft of the watch, said, by going into the store and inquiring into the price of some rings which were on display in the west display window of the store. While the clerk was removing the rings from the window for Landers' inspection, he crowded up against the work bench in the west front part of the store, and pocketed the watch. The theft of the ring was not noticed until the owner called for it several days later.

Mr. Specter now is placing a door at the entrance of the small work room, so that hereafter customers cannot enter it without attracting the attention of the management.

Suspicion was first cast upon Landers when a theft was reported after he checked out of the hotel last Tuesday afternoon. Previous to that time Landers had been registered at the hotel five times in about ten days. He registered there again Wednesday and police were notified.

Landers was to be arraigned before Judge Berg in municipal court Friday afternoon on a charge of burglary.

Strengthened by the addition of H. H. Pelkey, former city champion, who has been out of the game for several years, the Appleton Tennis club four-man team will play for the Fox river valley team championship Saturday at Oshkosh. The local men meet Oshkosh in the final match for the valley title and the Smith trophy, donated by C. R. Smith of Neenah.

Mr. Smith donated the trophy 15 years ago when the team tournaments were originated at Waupaca. The contests are sponsored by the Wisconsin Tennis league, comprising that part of the state bounded by a line north of the south line of Fond du Lac-co. and east of the west line of Juneau, Wood and Marathon-cos. The idea of the trophy contest was patterned after the Davis International cup play, because it was thought that inter-city or inter-club matches would stimulate interest in the game.

Six cities entered the meet this year and Oshkosh and Appleton eliminated the other four in the last month. Appleton defeated Neenah-Menasha in the first round and Waupaca in the semi-finals. Members of the local squad are Dr. R. V. Landis, W. E. Rogers, Paul Scallion, H. H. Pelkey, A. D. Power and John C. Smith. Saturday Pelkey, Scallion and Landis will represent Appleton in the Valley singles meet, Rogers and Scallion as one doubles team, and Landis and Pelkey as the other. Rogers recently reached the semi-finals in the Valley singles meet, losing to the eventual champion.

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

FOR 39 YEARS Dunlop has been building the world's supreme tire. Dunlop wears longer because Dunlop knows how to build better at each vital point.

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.

UTILITY RATES ARE LOWER THAN BEFORE WAR. SPEAKER SAYS

Utility Men Urged to Cut Rates Still More and Extend Service

Mr. Mason — (AP) — Delegates to the Wisconsin Utilities Association convention here Friday, urged to still further reduce rates on electric service and to increase the use of electricity in farm homes.

"Trade investigators from other countries have unanimously asserted," said G. H. Wilmeth, of the State of Wisconsin, "that the electric industry in the United States is cheaply overvalued. It is the only industry in the world which has been through the orderly and systematic development of interconnection of lines between companies, privately owned and publicly regulated."

"One of the principal means by which the electric industry has been able to make electric service the cheapest commodity in the general cost of living has been through the orderly and systematic development of interconnection of lines between companies, privately owned and publicly regulated."

"Interconnection under private ownership in benefitting the public, the workmen and communities in three different ways—economic, social and improved service. It is benefitting the nation because it conserves our coal, oil, gas and water power supply. It is benefitting the utilities because it is helping to reduce costs of operation."

COST REDUCED

"Through interconnection and improved efficiency the unit cost of electric service to the public is lower than before the war despite the fact that practically everything entering into the cost of producing and delivering electricity has increased from 50 to 100 per cent."

"The most recent instance of the value of interconnection was displayed in the Mississippi flood where scores of cities that were inundated would have been deprived of their light if current had not been made available by companies outside the flood zones."

"To illustrate how interconnection helps companies and thereby the users of electric service, I cite the interconnection between the properties of the Northern States Power Co. in Wisconsin and Minnesota. If Wisconsin were not interconnected with the Twin cities we would have to build a large steam plant to supply the needs of the people in Wisconsin during periods of low water supply. This would make rates higher."

G. G. Post, chairman of the electrical distribution committee submitted the first and most comprehensive plan as far developed in the United States for the systematic and economical construction of rural lines. "It is authoritatively estimated that the construction of rural lines in Wisconsin will exceed $100,000,000," said Mr. Post.

"The advantages of electric service to the farm are so great that ultimately such service will be an economic necessity and will be made available to every farm. This will result in a network of distribution lines covering farming territory."

Mr. Post said that the study of the committee shows that substations

MAKE RAPID PROGRESS ON NEW STORE BUILDINGS

Progress is being made with construction of two new store buildings on W. College-ave. The basement for the building at 321 W. College-ave has been completed and the walls were to be started Friday. This building is to be of concrete block and brick and will have a frontage of 22 feet on College-ave.

Excavating for the basement for a store building at 310 W. College-ave is nearly completed and the walls were to be started Friday. M. Belzer is to be the owner of the building which will cost about $8,000.

Excavating for the basement for the farm to the city has been checked because, with electric service farm life has innumerable advantages over city life. The wonderful dream of old Omar Khayyam would not be a patch on the near Utopia that will be present when the farm home is reestablished through the assistance of "good" electric service on an economical basis.

L. J. Beckwith, Milwaukee, chairman of the Radio Coordination Committee advocated greater use of the radio to improve service to customers by employing it more generally and more systematically to locate incipient causes of equipment failure. He recommended procuring the aid of the University of Wisconsin in carrying on research work in the use of radio to locate trouble and predicted that if such research work is done, the public, radio owners and electric customers will be greatly benefited.

Test-Bottle FREE
Postpaid, or at store named below

Red Semlor is the only mouth wash and gargle that gives Visible results. You see and thus know—when your mouth is cleansed and deodorized. It changes from red to white if your mouth is acid from fermentation or any other cause. It changes back to red when it has destroyed the acid and your mouth is clean. Its daily use will keep you informed of the mouth's true condition and visibly indicates improvement as it takes place. No other antiseptic does this. Ask your dentist.

Semlor dissolves and removes film from the teeth, causing the teeth to glisten with natural pearly whiteness. This you can also see by a simple test shown in free booklet "Visible Mouth Hygiene." This comes with every bottle. Semlor destroys germs of decay and removes fermenting food particles from between the teeth, thus protecting against tooth decay and pyorrhea.

Semlor quickly deodorizes unpleasant breath (halitosis). After using, your mouth will actually taste sweet and clean. U. S. WON'T MOVE TO BLOCK FRENCH LOAN

Not only an able financial mind but that he will at the proper moment find the occasion to get parliamentary backing for an agreement with the United States.

The reorganization of French finance under the Poincare regime has been observed with a good deal of satisfaction and it is confidently hoped that the refinancing of the French loan which now is proposed will stimulate the French government to take a forward step toward the settlement of the war debt due the American government. Far from wishing to impede the proposed refinancing operation the American government is anxious to see that operation a success, though to be sure no approval or disapproval is ever entered in the record with respect to the merits of any foreign loan.

WHAT'S A LITTLE ARSON IF IT AMUSES PEOPLE?

Paris—(P)—The sight of fire apparatus whizzing through the streets is not so frequent in France as in America. Some seem to feel the need of the thrill a little more often.

One serious Paris paper has suggested that wooden huts be put in the streets and set afire every now and then, in order to provide amusement for the fire-loving public and a test of speed for the firemen.

In the villages—where wooden homes are almost unknown—a fire is indeed a rare thrill. Sometimes there isn't one from one end of the year to the other. But the "pompiers," and the public have their fun just the same. Every year a day is set aside in some villages in which a fire is built, just to test the speed of the volunteers, who hustle from home and workshop to pull the pump to tame the fire.

CUR BECOMES A STAR

Beverly Hills, Ill.—Three times 9-year-old Charley Heck tried to give away his dog, Tipper, was just an ordinary little Irish terrier that stole neighbors' papers and dug up their gardens, so nobody would take him from Charley. One day, just for fun, the boy sent Tipper's picture to a screen magazine that was running a contest. The pup won first prize and a chance to act in the movies.

22 LANGUAGES ASSURE CHICAGO EMPLOYE'S JOB

Chicago—(P)—A Bohemian nobleman, who speaks, reads and writes 22 languages, and dialects, is an employee of the Chicago city health department.

He is Dr. Waldemar Juneck and his duties are to translate the health department reports into a dozen or more languages for the consumption of Chicago's polyglot population.

Sitting at his prosaic desk in the Chicago city hall, Dr. Juneck might be mistaken for just another of the many employees who crowd the big office. But he writes M. D., M. A., and Ph. D. after his name, and if he chose, he could call himself the eighteenth baronet of Krichhammer of Sir Oscar Waldemar Marius Constantine Doodar Arnhulph McPherson Juneck.

GERMAN PRINCE BURIED WITH IMPERIAL POMP

Berlin—(P)—With all the military pomp of imperial days, Prince Friedrich Sigismund of Prussia, prominent German sportsman, was laid to rest in the family vault in the park of Glienicke, near Potsdam. The dashing cavalry officer of the world war was killed at the equestrian tournament in Luzern.

The funeral ceremony was attended by President von Hindenburg, who appeared in the faded uniform of field marshal, with baton and helmet. All the members of the former royal family were present.

The hearse was drawn by four chargers draped in sweeping black cloth bearing the royal coat of arms. Above three airplanes circled slowly with long black trailers. Immediately behind the hearse the favorite horse of the deceased, "Sacred Spear," walked alone.

WILL MAKE SUN WORK

New York—The time is near, says Charles F. Kettering, New York inventor, when the energy of the sun will be put directly to work instead of storing it up in coal and oil deposits and using it as now is done. Uncounted billions of potential horsepower are going to waste each day, he says, because the sun's rays are not used.

Jewish Race Sends Most Of Wire Congratulations

Seldom does the arrival of a telegram herald the coming of bad news at a home, for in many cases the message is actually one of greeting or congratulation. But it is also interesting to note that telegraph company statistics show that the greater percentage of the telegrams and congratulatory messages are sent by the people of the Jewish race.

A number of reasons have been given for this condition, one of which is the fact that the Jewish people have many more holidays than Gentiles. There also is a closer relationship between Jews which prompts them to send congratulations at the time of weddings and births.

Officials at the Appleton office of one of the telegraph companies recalled the wedding of a young lady prominent in Jewish social circles here a few years ago. It was said that the average person hardly can conceive the number of congratulatory messages which were received over that particular company's wires.

When the Jewish people are celebrating their holidays the telegraph companies often have special help in their offices to enable them to handle the increased business. Many of the offices are even forced to keep open extra hours in order to accommodate the greetings.

And just as Gentiles have special telegram blanks to send their messages of greeting and congratulation to the Jews, if one is to inquire telegraph company officials will show special blanks which are used for Jewish new years greetings and for many of the other holidays.

The telegram of congratulation and greeting was introduced to the public not more than seven or eight years ago and the business has grown to a point where it has become an institution with the companies. From 1923 to 1927 the business has increased from 30 to 40 per cent per year. In the past few years the companies have put out special stationery for the various occasions in order to add a personal touch to the greetings.

LONSDORF APPROVES CONTRACTORS' BONDS

Contractors' bonds for five bridge projects in Outagamie county were approved Thursday by John Lonsdorf, district attorney. All of the bridges are to be completed by Oct. 1. Contracts were let Aug. 18 for the following bridges: Nichols No. 2, town of Cicero; Johnson, town of Cicero; McCabe, town of Kaukauna; Hofer, town of Ellington; Daust, town of Oneida.

Let of instruction for the use of their patrons which offers suggestions in the way of greetings for the many holidays and special occasions. Among the greetings listed are those for New Year, Valentine day, Easter, Mother's day, Thanksgiving day, Christmas, and for other occasions such as birthdays, weddings and anniversaries.

On the birth of a child, the death of a friend or relative, and at the time of graduation from school or college.

Telegrams are also being used extensively to send invitations for it adds a more personal touch to the message. In this connection it is interesting to note that the letters XU have taken the place of the time-honored R. S. V. P. as a request for a message of acceptance or refusal.

The XU letters placed in the square marked check on the upper part of the telegram will prompt the telegraph company to enclose a blank for an answer. The messenger boy will also request an answer to the message.

LOSS FROM FIRE IN CITY DURING AUGUST $2,000

Report of Department Shows
Only one Blaze Where Damage Amounted to Much

Loss from fires in Appleton during the month of August was less than $2,000, according to the monthly report of George P. McGillan, chief of the fire department.

MONEY AND POLITICS

We can quite agree with Senator La Follette that Vare of Pennsylvania and Smith of Illinois ought not to be seated by the senate. We are not as sure as he, however, that they will not be seated. The Republican party, say what one pleases, has a habit of looking at corruption and political vice with a forgiving eye. Already things seem to be shaping themselves for the glossing over of the primary scandals of two years ago. The party managers will consent to the white-washing of Vare and Smith if they think they can get away with it. The Mellon interests and Senator Reed, who originally opposed Vare, are now hand in glove with the machine that elected him, and are so working in the approaching Philadelphia municipal election. They will assert all their influence to seat Vare. Similar forces are behind the Smith machine in Illinois. Although President Coolidge has spoken critically of the senatorial scandals, there has not at any time been convincing evidence that the Republican leaders themselves considered the offense as outside the pale of accepted political standards. Undoubtedly their desire and plan is to seat both men. The one thing that may restrain them is the impending presidential election, but they may figure that Republican strength is sufficient to override popular condemnation of this act.

Vare and Smith of course should be rejected. The road by which they seek to enter the senate is tainted at every step with money and is repugnant to the purity of our elections and to democratic government. To countenance their offense would be to pave the way to setting up a money oligarchy, and there is too much color to the charge that it already exists as things are. The great danger that confronts this over-rich and prosperous nation is government by money rather than by the people. While we do not share Mr. La Follette's views that the admission of Vare and Smith to the senate would undermine our institutions and wreck the republic, it constitutes a wrong and an evil which we should be spared. The American people are too level-headed to tolerate such abuses to the point of national disaster, but those who would wink at the prodigious use of money in elections and the corruption of the electorate should bear in mind that the farther we go in this direction the severer will be the reaction when it comes, as it inevitably will.

There is too much easy money in the United States to as yet seriously question how it is gotten or how it is employed. We are in a sense drunk with wealth. The primary debauches in Pennsylvania and Illinois are but a sample of this reckless attitude toward money and what money may buy. The Republican party owes it to the country to purge itself of this vicious influence, and if it does not hit straight from the shoulder and repudiate Vare and Smith it will live to regret the decision. There comes a time when reputation ceases to carry the weight of transgressions. It is so of political parties as it is of individuals. With Newberry, Fall and Daugherty still fresh in the public mind, it will be playing with fire to add the names of Smith and Vare to the list.

THE McCRAE PAROLE

The paroling of Warren T. McCrae, former governor of Indiana, after serving three years and four months in the Atlanta federal prison on a sentence of ten years is a questionable act of mercy. It could only rest upon the precarious state of his health, and by that we mean the probability of early death if he remained in prison. It should be borne in mind that it is always possible to obtain evidence of ill health sufficient to warrant clemency.

provided the evidence is not scrutinized too carefully. It should also be borne in mind in this case that President Coolidge was petitioned unsuccessfully for a pardon.

The parole is granted by the federal parole board and approved by Attorney-General Sargent. McCrae's offense was an inexcusable violation of the highest public trust to which the people of Indiana could repose in him. Men who make criminal use of high public office deserve to be made an example of, and there will be a suspicion that powerful political or other influences have had a hand in the freeing of McCrae.

If, of course, it should develop that his life is in peril and that he has only a few more years to live, the parole is justified. It might also be justified on the contention that the standards of justice today are low throughout the United States, and that men convicted of far worse crimes, including murder, receive a minimum of punishment, or often are allowed to go scot-free. This, however, is a defense that, while it might meet with popular acceptance, would be a dangerous precedent and in itself inherently indefensible.

MALNUTRITION

Because of the detrimental effects physically, mentally and possibly morally, of malnutrition, it becomes a pertinent question for general consideration.

About one fourth of the children of the United States are inadequately nourished, which does not mean that they are insufficiently fed but that they are improperly fed, while the total number of perfectly nourished children is surprisingly small, according to the findings of recent studies made by the United States Children's bureau. In one study conducted in a rural county in Kentucky forty per cent of the children were classed as poor, from the point of view of nutrition, thirty-five per cent as fair, eighteen per cent as good, and only seven per cent as excellent. In some communities malnutrition is said to be so common that it is not even recognized as an abnormal condition. Even in New York city where child care agencies exist that are unknown in the rural sections, it was estimated a few years ago that 185,000 of the 1,000,000 school children at that time needed supervision and 31,000 required medical treatment.

It was early recognized by all workers in this field that the school is the logical place for the educational phases of nutrition work for children of school age. Here all can be reached, regularity of attendance can be obtained, and the educational facilities of the school, such as medical service, hygiene classes, physical exercises, home economics, the school lunch and other activities can be utilized to insure that the children learn hygienic living, and during the school day at least, practice it.

When the importance of the matter is more widely understood all school systems will embrace this work, for from such clinics-nutrition education percolates into the home and through the child the whole family is reached. It is, therefore, a very proper function for schools.

OLD MASTERS

Sleep on, and dream of Heaven awhile—
Though shut so close thy laughing eyes,
Thy rosy lips still wear a smile
And move, and breathe delicious sighs!

Ah, now soft blushes tinge her cheeks
And mantle o'er her neck and throat
Ah, now she murmurs, now she speaks
What most I wish—and fear to know!

She starts, she trembles, and she weeps!
Her fair hands folded on her breast:
—And now, how like a saint she sleeps!
A seraph in the realms of rest!

Sleep on, secure! Above control
Thy thoughts belong to Heaven and thee:
And may the secret of thy soul
Remain within its sanctuary!

DIET FOR LONG LIVED VALETUDINARIANS

A valetudinarian is an individual suffering with a mild form of anhedonia, anhedonia, according to Dr. Webster, is incapacity to enjoy life, dreariness, lack of sense of humor, or something like that. We health teachers ought to be thankful for the valetudinarians, instead of poking fun at them. But I just can't feel that way somehow. I seem to hold a kind of grudge against the valetudinarians from the very beginning of my practice. Among the first for whom I had a recipe was a young person who had just one pesky little symptom or complaint, a bad taste in the mouth, and try as I could that valetudinarian would not admit anything else nor could I hit offhand on another abnormality. So I made a guess and let the patient get away for four bits, whereas, had I known anything about periodic health examinations, the patient would have left the price of a ton of hay, and this has always ranked in my bosom, for the recipe were thicker than they are now and we not not over 100 miles out of a ton not counting the happiness for which that era is famed.

Some valetudinarians have a "claim" of nervous indigestion and some good doctors are willing to grant the claim when a thorough examination has convinced them (the doctors) that there is nothing seriously wrong. For such sufferers Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, often recommended a smooth diet. He argues that, as no ferment in the digestive tract will dissolve cellulose (plant fibre) the eating of much "roughage" in vegetables or fruits or bran only places a burden on the digestive tract and interferes with the digestion of starches and predisposes to flatulence.

Accordingly Dr. Alvarez would exclude from the diet of the individual with "nervous indigestion" beans, cabbage, onions, green or red peppers, celery, tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, peaches, many of the green vegetables, raisins, berries, jams full of seeds, nuts and many of the raw fruits. In general such patient should take no coarse foods with fibre, skins, seeds or gristle. Pretty tough, I'd call it. But the hardest part of this smooth diet is yet to come. Avoid sugar in concentrated form and take no candy or other food between meals, advises Dr. Alvarez. What, less than two spoonfuls of sugar in a cup of coffee? Ouch, that would be anhedonia, and worse. Such a smooth diet, says Dr. Alvarez, does not explain why he forbids it. Hot cakes and waffles might be all right, he concedes, if they were not eaten with so much syrup. And I have often thought syrup was all right only folks served so many hot cakes with it.

Avoid eating when in a rush or when mentally upset, and avoid squabbles, scolding or family rows at table. Fried foods are not bad, Dr. Alvarez concedes, if they are properly fried, that is, totally immersed in fat at the right temperature. The doctor does not explain why he forbids it. Hot cakes and waffles might be all right, he concedes, if they were not eaten with so much syrup. And I have often thought syrup was all right only folks served so many hot cakes with it.

Chewing gum may cause distress, as much air is swallowed with the saliva. "Well, I often wish it would."

If there are any gaps in your teeth have your dentist fill them with the proper dentures, as digestion is greatly helped by a good chewing surface. So says Dr. Alvarez, and I second the motion, but I think when the doctor makes this motion he virtually admits that, after all, it isn't "nervous indigestion" he is dealing with, but just some unidentified deficiency—in this instance loss of teeth, dental indigestion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sulphur, Iron, Lime

Please give me a list of foods that contain sulphur, iron and lime. (Mrs. L. M.)

Answer—Eggs, yolk, fresh raw cabbage, cheese, carrots, peas, molasses, spinach, lettuce, liver, prunes, string beans, peanuts.

Tartar on Teeth

What causes the accumulation of tartar on the teeth and what is a good remedy for it? It seems to affect chiefly the inner surface of the lower front teeth and molars. I find it rather expensive as my dentist charges me $12 each six months for cleaning. (W. D. E.)

Answer—I don't know what causes tartar deposit, but I suspect it is from inadequate mastication of rough or natural foods, especially raw fruits and vegetables. Only the dentist can scale tartar from the teeth without injury to the teeth. It should be done every six months.

Bimbo Sleeps Supine

Our baby boy aged 2 months persists in sleeping on his back. This worries us, for we fear it may spoil the shape of his head. He is just as healthy as can be. (Mrs. P. E. N.)

Answer—it is all right if the baby prefers that posture. In another month he will be able to follow the light on objects with his eyes, and then perhaps if you will turn his crib around he will vary his sleeping posture from one side to another.

Cream to Fill Out

Please tell me if there is any cream or anything to fill out the body if it is applied to the desired parts and massaged in. (Marie P.)

Answer—No, all that is cosmetic or beauty bunk. Pure fresh cream, or even ice cream (tasty but out of the scrapings) placed if used internally. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address for directions for getting plump.

Salve for Cracking, Itching Toes

Two years ago or more you gave a formula for a salve for the relief of a kind of ringworm eczema of the feet prevalent among patrons of gymnasiums and swimming pools. I now have this trouble, cracking of the skin and much itching between the toes. My swimming instructor tells me your formula cleared up a similar epidemic they had here then. (T. F.)

Answer—Salicylic acid, 20 grains; benzoic acid, 60 grains; petrolatum, sufficient to make one ounce. (Copyright John F. Dille company.)

The Lowdown on the Big Fight

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

LAKE MICHIGAN STILL WAITS ITS HOMER

Every time a novel appears about Lake Michigan I gobble it up eagerly, in the hope that it will be the great novel about the life on that inland sea that is crying to be written. Every time I am disappointed but it never takes away the conviction that a great story of the lakes will appear some time. It seems almost inevitable.

All of which sounds like a prelude to a particularly unfavorable review of the latest novel of Lake Michigan life, "The Marked Man," by Karl W. Detzer. It is nothing of the kind. Detzer's book is as good as the average of its kind. The publishers compare it with the Joseph C. Lincoln books. They need not apologize for the statement. It compares well with the enormously popular Lincoln stories and with hundreds of novels of that class—so-called action stories, stories in which action is for its own sake, to produce a thrill.

It would hardly be fair to ask of a detective story the same qualities that may be asked of a genuine novel. In the detective story it is usually not considered good technique to expend words on subtle character shading. The action's the thing, the unraveling of the mystery. It is almost mathematical instead of literary. So with the swift tale of action that fills a certain class of magazine. It is probably unreasonable to ask of it that it shall have authentic character portrayal. Such books are read for their action, hence it is almost a merit to begin with stock figures that can be immediately and definitely recognized. It saves time for the reader who goes after action.

All of which is the same as saying that it is unreasonable to expect that a novel of life on the Great Lakes shall be a Joseph Conrad story. Joseph Conrad is necessarily scarce. But I am always hoping that some novelists of the lakes shall give at least a hint of that kind of thing, producing a book in which the action of the tale is a revelation of the secret story of human souls. I am convinced that the life on the lakes is just as rich in material for great fiction as the life of the Seven Seas on which Conrad based his novels.

"The Marked Man" is the story of a young Michigander whose father was Scandinavian and his mother French. Half of him pulls him to the life of a seaman, half of him pulls to the land. The French in him makes him fond the lake, the Scandinavian in him makes him reluctantly love it. He is a marked man, practically a pawn in a battle between two nationalities. More specifically, he is marked by his rugged father's tale of a dead dog in a shipwreck, a tale so often repeated that it makes him fear a dead dog in the water as if it were a ghost.

The story hinges on these two elements. His French fear of the water makes him appear a coward on a number of occasions. This idea is further strengthened on specific occasions when, in a crisis, he encounters a dead dog in the water and later a dead sheep, and his blood turns to water. In the end a big scene is staged by the author, as is usually done in the movies, in which the hero proves to the satisfaction of all and especially to the satisfaction of two girls in the story, one of whom he is to marry, that he is fundamentally a brave man.

The big scene is, in itself, exceedingly thrilling—the single handed battle of the hero in a little gasoline boat against a Lake Michigan storm. Detzer evidently knows Lake Michigan at first hand and he knows how to stake a storm. If you can overlook the artificiality of the whole setting, the absence of genuine life of their own in the characters, you will probably get a great deal of enjoyment out of "The Marked Man."

It is futile to cry for the moon and it is futile to cry over the fact that every character is a stock figure, that life is not in them. The author knows labor enough on dialect and he knows the idiom of the lake intimately, but we learn nothing about the minds and souls of his characters.

But "The Marked Man" makes no pretense at being anything else, and of its kind it is a competent piece of work.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

GUN IS MOST FREQUENT AGENT OF SUICIDE IN U. S.

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

When a man commits suicide he has a variety of choices of means by which he will propel himself into the unknown. The international list of causes of death groups cases according to suicide by poison, by asphyxia, by hanging or strangulation, by drowning, by firearms, by cutting or piercing instruments, by jumping from high places, by crushing, and finally by miscellaneous causes.

More than one-third of all suicides are accomplished by means of firearms and guns are employed relatively more frequently in rural districts than in the city. Men are more likely to use firearms than are women, and the pistol is preferred to the rifle.

HANGING CHOICE ABROAD

In most countries outside the United States hanging is the method preferred. The international list of causes of death groups cases according to suicide by poison, by asphyxia, by hanging or strangulation, by drowning, by firearms, by cutting or piercing instruments, by jumping from high places, by crushing, and finally by miscellaneous causes.

Jumping from high places is apparently preferred by women proportionately to their choice of other ways, but colored people scarcely ever use this method.

The rates for poisoning vary greatly from year to year. It is the method likewise relatively preferred by women. The choice of poison used varies greatly, but not the total number of cases. If one type of poison is suppressed another is soon secured. It is possible to restrict the sale of poisons, but not that of knives, ropes and other utensils. The person who wants to commit suicide usually finds a way.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—Of all the tough gangs that have come and gone in the side streets of this village, the most picturesque were the "Shirt Tails" and the "Plug Uglies."

These were operating many years before the "Hudson Dusters" brought terror to the fringes of Greenwich Village and before "Hell's Kitchen" had earned such a sinister name.

Both operated in the Five Corners bet which now is so civilized that it boasts an annual baby parade. The "Shirt Tails" took their name from a habit of going about without tucking in their shirt tails. And woe to the poor stranger who suggested that they perform this ceremony! They took this custom from the Chinese of the old regime who would go about in black shirt-tailed silk coats. This was in a day when the Chinese still wore pig-tails and before Occidental clothes had been so universally adopted. The hang-out of the "Shirt Tails" was just around the corner from Chinatown, and their meeting places were carefully camouflaged by fake store-fronts.

The "Plug Uglies" took their name from the old-fashioned silk hats they wore when on the warpath. They were a gang of tough and husky Irish lads. The idea for their particular costume was taken from the cartoons and the comedy stage where the Irish were shown in a tall hat and a clay pipe.

This gang would swing out of Paradise Square after stuffing their tall hats with leather, this being a protective measure in the event that clubs started falling on crowns. Fighting gangs were these, not the "shoot-from-the-hillhouse" type bred today. For a small sum they would undertake little odd-jobs of murder or bludgeoning. Their haunts were the lower Bowery which was a teeming gay white way.

Today their gay Bowery hang-outs are dismal flop-houses and the cheapest of bootleg parlors for bums. In the good old days this district blossomed with beer joints for men, women and children alike, while some of the most thriving theaters were operating. Several of the big stage fortunes and careers started from that section. The old blood-and-thunder melodramas were in great demand and, whereas the "best people" once attended, the gang arrivals gradually drove them out.

One of the most celebrated haunts of young criminals Manhattan ever gave birth to was a little cellar den later known as the "Grand Duke." Youngsters were brought up on a diet of toughness and learned to ape their swashbuckling brothers. There was a distinct difference between them and their "bald bandit" brothers of the present time.

When the Hudson Dusters reached the peak of their ill-fame a few years back, the police created a "deadline" beyond which no man with a police record dared pass without forfeiting his freedom. The "deadline" existed to this moment, and there are thousands of men who, if seen leaving their old districts and crossing it, are immediately subject to arrest and imprisonment. It is an accepted signal that their presence beyond the line means that they are bent on mischief of some sort.

Hell's Kitchen became comparatively civilized a year or more ago when a group of push-cart merchants moved in with their wares and turned Ninth avenue and its environs into a trading center. Tenth avenue still breeds a few notorious gang leaders, one of whom is now sought for shooting a few policemen and sticking up innumerable pedestrians.

ities and sororities develop snobbishness and thus defeat the spirit of democracy that should prevail.

The PENNY PRINCESS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

VERA CAMERON, advertising manager for the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co., falls suddenly in love with a man whom she hears called SCHUYLER. She overhears him say he will be at Lake Minnetonka in June. Jerry Macklyn has just previously proposed to Vera that he transform her from the old-maidish type which she is, into a beauty, with the aid of Peach Bloom cosmetics, and that he be allowed to photograph her in every stage of the change.

Vera has indignantly refused, but when she sees Schuyler, her need to be his is so strong that she goes to Lake Minnetonka in June surreptitiously every day and she goes back and agrees to Jerry's plan.

Vera's emerald-green eyes remind Jerry of an uncaptured Sunday supplement picture he has in his desk and he asks KITTY PROCTOR, the professional beauty specialist, to use that picture as a model.

During the transformation, Vera lives with Kitty Proctor, and when Vera and Jerry, after the experiment is complete, go to Vera's apartment, which she shares with her aunt, FLO-RA CARTWRIGHT, Flora is astonished at Vera's beauty. Vera tells them of her plans to go to Minnetonka in June. Flora later agrees to teach Vera, or Vee-Vee, as she calls her, all she knows about charm and appeal. When Vera asks Jerry one evening to teach her how to be "fatal to men," he demurs with a significant frown. Finally, however, he agrees to "teach" Vera for three weeks prior to her trip to Minnetonka, and to teach her all he knows. When he suggests that they make a foursome, including Flora and PETER DARROW, Flora is delighted for she thinks this will throw her in contact with Jerry.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

It was Saturday, June 18, and half past twelve o'clock. Vera Cameron was regarding with humorous dismay the array of packages which almost covered the flat top of her desk when Rosemary Fitch entered, carrying a large parcel.

"Hello Vee-Vee! It won't be long now! Aren't you thrilled to tears at the thought of being away from work until after the Fourth? Here's a vacation gift from Mr. Canfield, and my dear, it's the first time, in the memory of the oldest inhabitant that Stephen M. Canfield ever gave a girl a box of candy on her departure for a vacation. Five pounds! I'm staggering under the load!"

"Isn't he a dear?" Vee-Vee laughed. "Everyone has been marvelous to me. Just look! French perfume, a complete kit of Peach Bloom Cosmetics with my initials in gold, from Mr. Bonham, you know; five boxes of candy; three boxes of flowers, half a dozen of the new books—oh, I never dreamed people could be so sweet, Rosemary."

"People?" Rosemary laughed, a little maliciously. "You mean men, don't you? How many of these marvelous presents are from girls? Not one! I'll bet my week's salary."

"You win!" Vee-Vee laughed. "I, for one, am glad you're going away, even if it is for only two weeks!" Rosemary confessed. "And glad still that the old man is being dragged off to Europe by his daughters. I suppose Jerry—Mr. Macklyn—has told you that I'm to be his secretary while you're away. You can stay as long as you like, Vee-Vee. Don't hurry back on my account!"

Vera was startled by the pang of jealousy that contracted her heart. "He's a decent sort to work for, Rosemary, but I'm afraid you'll find it's a pretty heavy hot weather job. I never saw such a fiend for work."

"You seem to have stood up under it pretty well," Rosemary retorted. "As I've told you a dozen times, I never saw anything like your transformation, Vee-Vee. I'll never forget that first day that you came down, with your hair bobbed and in that gorgeous ensemble suit. Not a soul in the organization recognized you. Remember how Ruth Hall thought you were Mr. Macklyn's new secretary and told you all about Vera Cameron, the girl who used to work for him? I thought I'd die. It was so funny!"

"I remember," Vee-Vee acknowledged, her mouth tightening. "It was—very funny. Will you thank Mr. Canfield for me, Rosemary? I'm afraid I won't have time to write him a note. I've got a thousand things to do before my train leaves tonight," she hinted, praying that jealous little Rosemary would leave.

"Is Jerry—Mr. Macklyn—in?" Rosemary dropped her voice to a whisper as she glanced toward the closed door of Jerry's private office.

"No, he's at the printer's. But I'm expecting him back by one o'clock. He wanted to see me before I left," Vee-Vee answered, busying herself at her desk.

"Where are you going on your vacation, Vee-Vee?" Rosemary asked. "That's a secret," Vee-Vee smiled. "I'm not telling anyone."

"The girls say you've been spending all your noon hours shopping, and that Jerry has given you three half days off, in addition to Saturday afternoons," Rosemary persisted. "You must be going to Newport or to Hollywood to get into the movies. I would'n Macklyn—she had recklessly, magnificently, "shot her bank roll" to dress that beauty as it deserved.

Well—she drew a deep, quivering breath that betrayed her panic—it was done now, for better or worse. She had just enough money left to pay for two weeks in the Minnetonka Hotel. She read for her sortie into the world of idleness and fashion in search of the man she had fallen in love with, that she had not had time to be frightened before. Now that she was ready to go a black swarm of fears swooped down upon her, squeezing at her heart.

"I'm not engaged to Mr. Macklyn, Rosemary," Vee-Vee interrupted her rather sharply. "I have no strings on him at all. You can spend the entire two weeks I'm gone vamping him if you want to. And—good luck to you!"

"Oh, thanks, Vee-Vee! I think he's simply precious. Is he a good dancer?" "Divine," Vee-Vee said curtly. "But he's a dictator. It's all I can do to take his letters when he's working at high tension. And he has a most annoying habit of doing most of his dictating around four o'clock, and expecting every letter to be written before his secretary leaves. I'm just warning you," she added casually, turning back to her desk so that Rosemary should not have a chance to fathom the expression in her green eyes.

"You can't scare me off," Rosemary laughed. "Goodbye, Vee-Vee, dear. Have a good time—but don't hurry back."

When Rosemary had gone Vera Cameron began to open and close the drawers of her desk, her mind a chaos of emotions. An hour ago she had been so happy in the realization that the 18th of June had finally arrived. The goal for which she had striven for six mad, miracle-working weeks was just ahead. Her reservation had been made for a room and bath at the expensive Minnetonka Hotel. Her railroad and Pullman tickets were snugly secure in her new lizard-skin handbag. Two wardrobes trunks were already packed and checked through to Lake Minnetonka.

She whispered the name—"Schuyler!" But for once it failed to evoke his image. She sat, cold with fright at the enormity of the thing she had done. Intoxicated with her new beauty—beauty made possible by Jerry allowed to reach thirty without being trapped into marriage.

What a fool, what a fool she was! She beat her clenched hands against her desk.

"Hello, there! All set to go?" Vee-Vee looked up, startled, into Jerry Macklyn's broadly smiling, ruddy face.

"Nearly ready," she replied, rising. "I'm glad you got back before I left. Rosemary Fitch was in—she brought me a five-pound box of candy from Mr. Canfield."

"Got the old man going too?" Jerry chuckled. "This vamping of yours is assuming the proportions of a scandal. I've been to the printer's—got proofs on those ads and the booklets. It looks great—better even than I'd hoped. You photograph like a million dollars. Believe me, young woman, you're going to be famous from Portland to Portland when these ads of 'The Peach Bloom Girl' come out. Ziegfeld and the movie producers will be wiring us for your name and to offer you staggering contracts—here, look!"

Jerry spread a series of printer's proofs across the top of her desk. Two photographs stared up at her from each of the pages—a picture of a plain, dowdy, freckled girl, her eyes concealed by horn-rimmed spectacles, and, in amazing contrast, a picture of Vera Cameron after the miracle had been wrought—a breathtaking beautiful girl.

Jerry's cheerful voice boomed on, ignoring her dismayed silence. "And here are proofs on the booklet that will be mailed to every woman in the social register, from New York to San Francisco, and distributed free by every retailer of Peach Bloom cosmetics. Wrote it myself, and if I do say so as shouldn't, it's a wow! 'The Ugly Duckling: A Modern Fairy Story,' he quoted with relish. 'Tells the whole story of how a homely, unattractive stenographer was turned into the prettiest girl in the United States—the Peach Bloom Girl herself. That booklet alone will sell millions of dollars worth of Peach Bloom cosmetics, or I'm a liar, or a fool that doesn't know the first principles of the advertising game.'"

Vera clenched her key hands to keep them from seizing upon the sheets and tearing them to bits. Then, made reckless by desperation, she took a quick step toward Jerry Macklyn, laid her hands on his shoulders, raised her pale face, with its tear-luminous green eyes and implored him:

"Jerry, don't humiliate me like this!

Please, Jerry, I couldn't bear it to have my picture broadcast about—oh, can't you see how it would humiliate me? I'd rather die, Jerry—"

Jerry Macklyn reached for her hands, held them in a grip that hurt her, but his face was grim and his blue eyes were suddenly like cold steel. "I'll tear up these ads—an one condition, Vera!"

Color flamed in her cheeks. She struggled to release her hands. "And that—is?"

"That you give up your trip to Lake Minnetonka!"

SUGGESTS $5 DIVORCE

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Mich.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."

—Mrs. E. F. Bassett, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.

Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere.

Hats Of Beaver, Velour And Velvet, Replacing Felts
Cartwheel Chapeaux Ousted; Small Hats Head Vogue

BY HENRI BENDEL
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Imagination, harmony and appropriateness join hands to fashion hats this autumn.

It is a distinct relief to view the results. The old trend towards more and more uniformity make autumn headgear more charming and becoming than any hats for the past decade.

The small hat leads the vogue. Some are the tightest of cloches, with swerving cuts that take ideas from airplanes, in this day of much flying. Or they may have tight crowns, lower than last season, with ripling or slashed brims or brims that turn up abruptly on one side and down on the other.

Materials and trappings are multitudinous. Furthers are again for decoration. So is lace, gold and silver touches and all kinds of cute little geometric designs worked out in leather, precious stones and even embroidery.

FOR FELTS—THE BACKGROUND
As for the materials that fashion the new hats, I cannot be too enthusiastic. Of course after the way the ubiquitous felt ruled style for several seasons, it justly deserves being relegated to the background. One cannot abolish it entirely. And there is a new felt, a chiffon, that deserves consideration.

But beaver, better's plush, velours, velvets and other gleaming rich materials are media for some of the cleverest and most alluring apparel I have ever seen.

While styles are undergoing such change, women seem to be availing themselves of the opportunity to change their hat-habits. Hats, as I have always pointed out, should bear a definite relation to the costume they top. This season women have incorporated the ensemble into their scheme of dressing. By color, fabric and decoration the new hats "belong" to certain dresses or suits.

For instance, I fashioned a hat to accompany a suit of soft, transparent velvet in a rich burgundy shade. I chose a chiffon felt, in exactly the same shade, and by a narrow ripling, I simulated the ripling fullness of the suit skirt. As the suit and hat's color and fabric were lusciously rich and beautiful, the hat had no trimming whatever, save for a deep box pleat in the crown from the back to the front, with two little burgundy aggraves sticking out from under the pleat in front.

Pictured today are two of the loveliest of the new hats. By their materials, color and smart cut they are distinctive. One is a Paris importation from Alphonisne—fashioned from gleaming black beaver and soft, pliable velvet. Its austere simplicity and its clear-cut back line give it a smartness seldom achieved. It hugs the head with all the assurance that any aristocrat is heir to and by its unusual trimming it gains enviable chic.

TONE TUCK LENDS EASY GRACE
The tight crown has a single tuck across the top to give it easy grace. There is no brim but a band of black velvet swatches the bottom of the crown in brimlike manner and swerving into a high point in the back. Drops to be caught with a platinum pin of the new bowknot design.

Precious jewels and fine metals will be used often in this manner this season. For the new dressings of all women's fashion and the new materials that result from this tendency call for jewels to complete their dazzling effect.

POPULAR ONE-SIDED EFFECT
This hat I fashioned from chiffon felt in the bright French blue, matignon. Its tight crown gains by its trimming the one-sided effect. Two cords fashion this side trimming, hand-made from matching satin the shade of the gown with which it is worn.

"The ripling trim adds softness to the hat. But the real feminine touch that makes this hat decidedly new is the little veil of real lace, dyed to match, that falls softly over the forehead, not quite concealing the eyes that smile through it."

THE rock moved onward, sure-footed, and Clowdy yelled, "Why this 'but slow and Clowdy plainly is fun. You're missing quite a treat. If I got tired of standing, I will try and sit down, bye and bye. I haven't any doubt the rock will make a dandy seat."

He traveling speed picked up once more. The Tynymites ran along the shore so they could keep right up with him, and help him if he fell. To watch him sail alone was great. I guess not one would hesitate to take his place upon the rock, because they thought it was a joke.

Just then the whole bunch got a shock. Where Clowdy stood was not a rock, because a little red apparition, which made poor Clowdy groan, "What a catastrophe!" So they said, "I know, but we'll see how he'll do it. He won't weep. This stream you know, is not so deep." The thought of Clowdy falling in made all the Tynymites smile. On, on he went, while standing straight. The rock picked up a faster

Household Hints

VARIED CRETONNES
Cretonnes grow diversified; some now come in patterns for bedrooms, others for living rooms, while some are suitable only for children's rooms.

STUFFED PEACHES
Peaches stuffed with nuts, raisins and whipped cream form a delightful dessert while those stuffed with cheese make fine salad.

DELECTABLE APRICOTS
A few apricots added to peach preserves give more than their worth in piquant flavoring. They add zest to any preserve or jelly.

RAW BEANS
String and chop in small pieces about a dozen string beans. Add them to vegetable salad as you would celery. They are a crisp, enjoyable touch.

COMPOSE CUPBOARD
An attractive cupboard carries out the compose color idea by having its three shelves painted three shades of green. Chairs and table follow suit.

COOK-BOOK COVER
Glazed cretonne or gingham or gay oil cloth should be used to cover your cook book. It will keep it clean and add a colorful note also.

HOT VINEGAR
Dip a rag in hot vinegar and wipe off your gas stove if you like to have it immaculate and spotless.

MAPLE FLAVOR
To make the flavor of beverages more interesting, every now and then try sweetening them with maple syrup instead of sugar.

"DIFFERENT" COCKTAIL
Californians make a delicious fruit cocktail for beginning a meal by using grapefruit and cherries, with strained honey on top.

Cut raw potatoes sometimes will remove a mud spot from black silks of firm weave. The thin film of starch left when the potato has dried can be brushed off. This treatment leaves a spot on all but black materials.

To make dumplings for a stew, prepare dough as for baking powder biscuits. Roll out about half an inch thick, cut with a small cutter, and cook for 10 minutes on top of the boiling stew. The kettle should be kept covered during the entire time the dumplings are cooking.

Plain bacon sandwiches can be put together in a very short time when other fillings are unavailable.

form one of the new accessory ensembles for fall chic. All have square gold buckles for ornament.

FLARING UNDIES
Autumn fashions accentuates the new moulded silhouette by having tight hip-buckles with circular inserts flaring out below.

BLACK PLEATS
Smoke-gray kitten-car fashions a tailleur that reverses the conventional styling and has a box-pleated back and only one kick pleat in front.

Artist Happier Married To One Of His Own Profession--Marriage, Paint Do Mix

LOUCESTER, Mass.—"Are artists happier married or single?" Well, if you must know the answer, why not ask the artists? They must know more about this than the layman.

And if you want to find the artists, just visit this quaint seacoast fishing town where there are more easels, palettes and bright colored smocks than you ever imagined gathered in one spot. Here you can study at close range the personalities behind the names that stand high in contemporary art.

LIGHT ON HAPPINESS
Selecting five, we will shed light on the question of happiness—with and without the marriage yoke.

First, let us ask Alice Beach Winters, who does child studies, and Charles Allen Winters, painter of highly decorative magazine covers. They are found in a delightful summer home with a roomy, interesting studio, both hard at work.

THEIR COURTSHIP
Winters met and wooed Miss Beach in St. Louis, where, after coming from the Academy of Cincinnati, he served as instructor in the St. Louis School of Art. Miss Beach was his pupil.

Says he: "It is because we both keep busy doing the thing we want to do that we are happy together. We are interested in each other's success and understand the satisfaction of a picture in the mind coming into being on the canvas."

"Absolutely correct," echoes his wife.

We pass on to Therese Bernstein, who was exhibiting her work at the National Academy galleries at the age of 18, and William Meyerowitz, who is hailed as a second Whistler. In private life they are Mr. and Mrs.

LIKE THE SAME THINGS
Says she:

"We are very happy together—possibly because we like the same things and have a common conception of pleasure and happiness."

Says he: "You see, Therese and I have similar ideals. We approve of all liberal thought, for a thought in any new direction spells progress to us. Our convictions on this score are identical and that, perhaps, has given us perfect understanding. And too, we would both rather paint the portrait of a thinker—a writer, musician or actor—than a member of the nobility. It is our corresponding ideals that

A DISSENTER
Now on to Margaret Fitzhugh Browne—she painted the portrait of the King of Spain, you may recall. She holds herself aloof from marriage. "Because," she explains, "I consider marriage not an essential but an interruption to a career."

Four out of five vote for it, one against it. And the pro's are married to artists, which leads us to believe that a painter is not only happy married, but happiest married to one of his or her own profession. Now, ask us another!

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

At dinner that evening Faith Hathaway was a different woman than the one who had lain all night in an agony of jealousy and fear. She sat at the head of her table erect and proud, gracious and beautiful, consciously playing the role of the beloved mistress of a well regulated home, and the wife of a man who loved her.

Faith talked cheerfully, pretending not to notice the fact that her remarks went almost unanswered by Cherry and Bob. As if he sensed her fight and wanted to help her, Jim Lane, her stoop-shouldered, prematurely old father, took an unwelcome part in the conversation.

"Yes, sir, things are looking up," he assured the family emphatically. "I run into Thompson—you know, the big hardware man, Faith—and he said he looked for a big year next year. The old town's booming; there ain't no doubt about that. Am I right, Faithaway?" he turned to his son-in-law.

"Far as I'm concerned, there's no reason for me to kick up my heels with joy," Bob retorted plumbly. "The Benjamins—those new-rich oil people—have kept me dangling for months on plans for their new home and have at last sent to New York for an architect. But I hope you're right, sir," he added courteously, as Jim Lane's lined old face grew sadder. He pushed back his plate abruptly, saying to Faith, without looking into her eyes: "Will you excuse me now, Faith? I've brought home some work to do."

"If you want to know the truth," Cherry burst out, "Bob and I have been quarreling off and on all day. He's forbidden me to see any more of Glenn Andrews and I refuse to be dictated to, Glenn."

"Glenn!" Bob exploded. "Calling him by his first name already! I've told her, Faith," he turned to his wife, his voice hard and cold, "that she's not to lead this Andrews chap on and create a fresh scandal for the town to lick its chops over. Churchill has warned her that if she wants a divorce from Chris Wiley, one that will give her absolute custody of the baby, she'll have to walk a chalk line. Chris is not above framing her for compromising evidence to air in the courtroom and she knows it. Well, I've said my say."

"I'll say you have!" Cherry interrupted bitterly. "You've been saying it all day long! And I've said mine—I'm not going to be cooped up in this house every night of the week, and Glenn Andrews is a gentleman. You ought to be glad he's willing to show me a good time!" she cried, her voice growing shrill on threatened tears.

"I suppose I ought to be glad that you vamped him away from Selma Faith, right under our eyes." Bob retorted angrily. "Almost the only friends who've remained loyal through all your trouble, and then you take pains to alienate them! I wish you'd talk to her, Faith. I'm through! If she loses the baby by her headstrong foolishness, it will not be her fault. I'm going to get to work," he concluded angrily, as he flung away from the table.

"And I," Cherry laughed defiantly, "am going to get ready for my date with Glenn. And oh, Faith, would you mind dressing the baby up real sweet? Glenn has asked especially to see the midget. Doesn't that look as if he's serious already? I want to be happy!" she hummed loudly, as she rose from the table, her golden eyes mocking Bob, who had stopped in the arched doorway between living room and dining room.

INDIANS BATTLE TO KEEP THEIR LANDS FREE FROM TAXES

Charge Treaty with Federal Government Forbids State Taxation

Ojibwa Indians have been advised to pay their tax assessments under protest, as Federal officials in charge of Indian affairs assure the redmen that if the federal courts decide their hands are not amenable to taxation the money paid as taxes will be recovered and tax debts set aside.

The Indians do not pay their taxes and the courts decide the lands are taxable they will lose their property. It is pointed out, if the courts decide a test case now in litigation in favor of the Indians, the government promises to take up each individual case for the original Americans.

That is the gist of a letter from E. B. Merrill, assistant commissioner of the Interior, office of Indian Affairs, to William Donner, superintendent of the Menominee Indian reservation at Keshena. Mr. Donner was asked to instruct the Indians to follow the instruction in the letter.

INDIANS EJECTED
Considerable public interest has been focused on the Ojibwa's fight to escape taxation as result of forcible ejection of an Ojibwa Indian, Henry Dostater, from his homestead on the Ojibwa reservation by the sheriff of Brown-co. Dostater had refused to pay his taxes for some years past, and a tax deed had been secured. The new owner secured a writ of restitution which the sheriff served on the family.

The Dostaters barricaded themselves in the home and tear gas failed to dislodge them. Finally the door was broken in and the entire family, including the sheriff and his deputies until they were overcome and taken to the county jail at Green Bay where they were held until their possessions were moved into the road.

The Ojibwas, incensed at such treatment, have taken up the fight in earnest, and William Skendore, chairman of the tribe, leading the battle.

The present battle of the Ojibwas to escape taxation is based on treaties made in 1784. The original thirteen colonies were weak and in distress in their fight for freedom from England and appealed to the Six Nations of Indians for aid. Only the Ojibwas and Tuscaroras responded, breaking their sacred ties which had bound the six nations together for three centuries to cast their lot with the United States.

On Oct. 22, 1784, after the close of the war of freedom, the United States made a treaty with the Ojibwas and Tuscaroras, granting the redmen certain tracts of land and declaring that they should be forever secure in their possession of the property. Mr. Skendore said Marquis LaFayette was present when this treaty was signed.

MAKE ANOTHER TREATY
In 1791, after the Indians had complained of encroachment of their rights the United States made another treaty, which Mr. Skendore claims, the United States commissioners are now seeking to set aside. This treaty provided that the land held by the Ojibwas in Wisconsin should never be embraced by the state. The pact was ratified by the federal government twice in 1838.

Under the terms of the treaty the Indians were under the protection of the federal government which agreed to protect their interests. Since the care of the Indians and their property became a great burden to the government officials, about 1870, fee simple patents were issued to them for the property they then occupied. These patents, the state claimed, made the property subject to taxation and taxes were levied against them. Many of the Indians refused to accept the patents, claiming the United States could not break the treaty of 1791. They maintained the federal government should retain the titles for the land and it should be held for the Indians, without taxation.

It is on this technicality that the Indians base their refusal to pay state taxes. They claim the United States had no right to issue the fee simple patents under the original treaty and they are trying to force the government to follow out the terms of the pact.

INDIANS WIN CASE
Mr. Skendore claims that the test case in the courts which was brought by the federal government as the guardian of the Indians under the treaty of 1791, against Dewey-co. South Dakota, was won for the Indians. Every effort is being made by Dewey-co to carry this case to the Supreme Court of Appeals and if the decision there favors the Indians, every Ojibwa would benefit.

The chairman of the Ojibwas scores the state, which he said, "has swallowed our lands" once they were released from the jurisdiction of the United States.

"Defrauding the tax sales were the rule rather than the exception," he charges, "and the Indian rights have been trampled on." Whenever an Indian contested a case in the state courts he was ruled against.

"The Ojibwas are fast becoming a homeless and landless race as the result of the aggression and of the state and the effort of the federal government to relinquish control of our lands. But our treaty of 1784 will stand up under the test."

Mr. Skendore tells of proposals made by Mr. McKenzie, a commissioner of the office of Indian Affairs, to extinguish the treaty of 1784. He said the Ojibwas rejected the proposal unanimously because they wish to remain under the care of the federal government rather than the state. He also relates how the Ojibwas, in tribal council in 1909, with 12 senators, including the late Robert M. La Follette, rejected a proposal, made by the state, that congress pass an act issuing fee simple patents to the redmen.

"The United States sent millions of soldiers to France during the World war who stood before the tomb of La Fayette and said, 'We are here' to return the aid extended to the colonies in their time of need. There was no treaty but the government felt bound by a sacred tie to return the aid."

"Also there were millions more men in training in this country to be sent across the ocean, if needed. It is said the $25,000,000 were spent by the government in this war in addition to loans of $14,500,000,000 to European allies."

"But who comes to the aid of the Ojibwas in their hour of need? The sheriff, of course! and what have we received in the way of money from the United States? An average of about 50 cents each for maintenance, guaranteed by a treaty that they are now attempting to break."

"The Ojibwas have always been self-supporting and have regarded that little stipend as a renewal of the ties assumed in the engagements of the past. The land in Wisconsin was not bought by the Indians. We received $25,000 from the United States as an inducement to trade our holdings in New York for the land which they are now taking away."

"It is gratifying to note that in the examination of the decision of the U. S. court in the Dakota case, the issuance of the fee simple patents is not a cessation of the relation of guardian and ward, between the government and the Indian. The states were assuming too much when they took the issuance of these patents to mean that the lands would be subject to taxation."

STAGE AND SCREEN

According to the consensus of opinion, "Bringing Up Father in Politics," the latest of the "Bringing Up Father" series to reach the stage, is the best musical comedy of the year. A capital achievement and one that should enhance the seemingly impregnable popularity of George McManus on whose cartoons the offering is based and Manager who is presenting and sponsoring the production. All the Mahoney clan including "Jiggs," "Maggie," "Dinty Moore," and others of this beloved coterie, will be seen and assuredly heard in an avalanche of sidesplitting situations, screams, surprises, features, melodies and innovations seldom compassed in one entertainment. The big event, which has set the public on edge for sometime will hold forth in its merry and mirthful way at the Appleton theatre, for matinee and night performances, the matinee commencing immediately after school dismisses, on Wednesday, Sept. 7. To those who are particular about the medium whereby they are supposed to laugh and throw dull care to the tail timbers this broad new medium of fun and hilarity is especially recommended.

"FOREIGN DEVILS"
With the eyes of the world turned upon China, the picture-going public will learn more about Oriental intrigues in the hour and fifteen minutes required to screen "Foreign Devils," Tim McCoy's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production showing Saturday only at Fischer's Appleton theatre. If they read news dispatches for a year, "Foreign Devils," an original story by Peter B. Kynch, is based on the Boxer uprising in China a quarter of a century ago, but conditions there are practically the same with the average Chinese that they were a thousand years ago. Claire Windsor plays the featured feminine lead and McCoy has the role of the American military attaché to the Peking legation. The picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke.

GET DESCRIPTION OF ESCAPED HI-JACKER

Motorcycle policeman and city patrolmen are on the lookout for the two hi-jackers who assaulted Police-man Lester Van Roy on a railroad trestle near the Wisconsin Tissue mill of the Tullman Pulp and Paper company last Sunday night.

An excellent description has been obtained of the man who fled when it appeared that Officer Van Roy was gaining the upper hand in the fight with the two men. The other man fell in the river during the fight and it was at first thought that he had drowned but police now believe he escaped by swimming to shore.

A mill worker saw the first man when he ran through the mill to escape Van Roy and the description was placed together: The man is about 25 years old, weighs from 145 to 150 pounds, is about 5 ft. 3 inches tall, is dark complexioned and has dark hair, his eye was blackened in the fight with the officer, he has an old scar on the right cheek, and a cut on the left side of the top of his head, is a snappy and quotational talker, and when last seen, wore a light blue cap, dark shirt and a rough gray suit.

BACK TO SCHOOL
Pasadena, Cal.—At a "sunset luncheon" given recently in Pasadena high school, the youngest guest was 85 years old. Among the 40 others was one centenarian. An old-fashioned spell-dance was a feature of the day and students, dressed in the fashion of 75 years ago, sang old-time songs.

School Days Again ARE YOU READY?

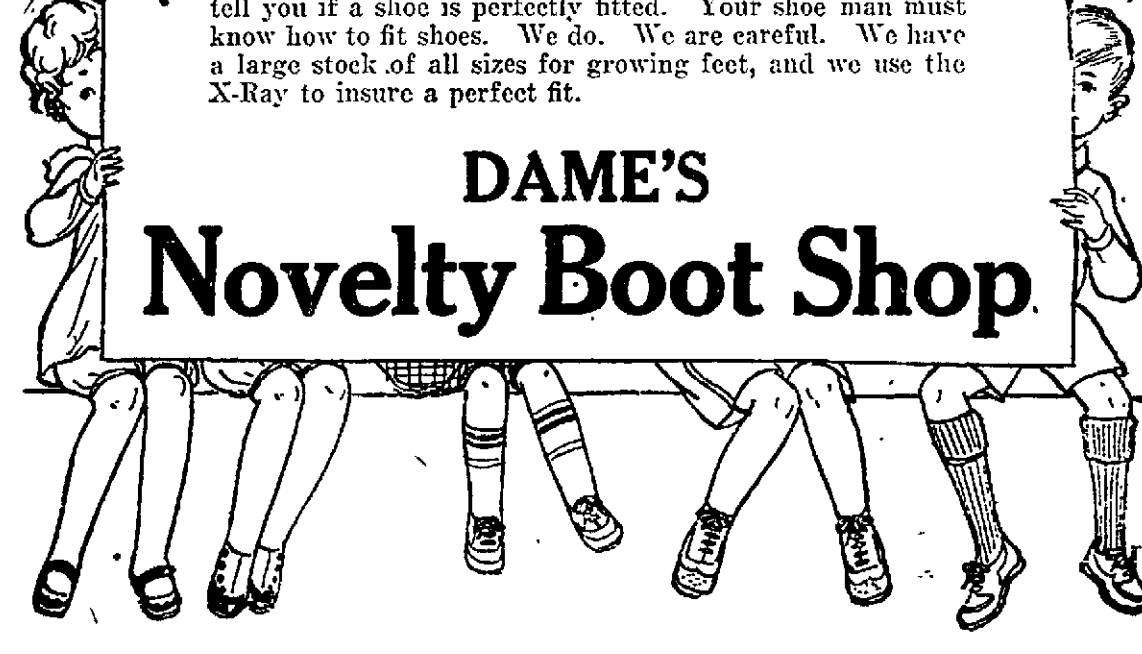

School begins Tues., Sept. 6th. In this final busy week of preparation mothers will appreciate the readiness of this store with both high and low shoes for boys and girls from kindergarten age to high school years.

We encourage particular care in the selection and fitting of all children's shoes—and particularly so of the smaller folks. If any of them have gone bare-foot or worn very soft, easy shoes or sandals this Summer, be careful about crowding their feet back into last Spring's shoes—for growing feet develop rapidly you know—and part of that "spreading" is natural growth.

Shoes Fitted By X-Ray

Though furthest from their minds, correct shoes are absolutely essential for school children, if you wish them to study. Nervous and muscular disorders arising from wrong shoes interfere with a child's progress. Yet a child cannot tell you if a shoe is perfectly fitted. Your shoe man must know how to fit shoes. We do. We are careful. We have a large stock of all sizes for growing feet, and we use the X-Ray to insure a perfect fit.

NEW GRIDDERS BOOST APPLETON HIGH TITLE CHANCES

Two Experienced Ends, Both Huskies, Transfer Activities To Local Grid

Abraham, Chicago, and Redlich, Northwestern Prep. Are New Six-Footers

Prospects for a 1927 Fox River Valley conference football championship for Appleton high school, which were given a tough blow a few weeks ago with the injury, before the season even started, to "Chuck" Schaefer, stellar 1926 soph end, were given a mighty boost this week, when Lady Jack decided that Old Man Jinx had fooled around enough with Orange grid squads in the last two years and now it was her turn to repair part of his damages. Among the transferred students, who will enter Appleton high next week are found two men, both of whom have had two years experience at either tackle or other prep eleven and their addition to the squad will be welcome news to Coach Joseph Shields and his nucleus of veterans.

One of the boys is Roland Redlich, a resident of Outagamie-co. who has spent three years at Northwestern college preparatory school at Watertown since graduation from an Outagamie-co. rural school. He played three years at the Northwestern prep school at end, winning letters his last two seasons. He is six feet tall and weighs 160 pounds and has entered the local school as a senior. This summer he worked on a farm and he is now hardened from the labor and "itching" to get into grid tops once more as soon as possible.

THREE-SPORT JUNIOR
The other man will be received by local fans with just as much enthusiasm as he is a three-sport man, and has two years of competition left. He is Roger Abraham, a transfer from Austin high school, a suburb of Chicago. Though the school is not famous for its grid teams as the city title usually goes to a south side team, as Hyde Park or Englewood, it leads all high schools of the west side on the chalked field. Abraham enters Appleton high as a junior with two years of play before him.

The former Chicago lad has earned two letters at end and tackle, starting at both berths since his entrance to high school. He is a big, husky fellow, as is a freshman. In basketball he is a center, a position that needs filling very much at Appleton high this winter, and he also is a track athlete. He stands six feet one inch in height and weighs 168 pounds. Both men are good scholars, with better than average scholastic averages, which will keep them on the eligible list to allow them to play immediately in spite of the transfer.

The addition of the men should give Coach Shields a line second to none in the valley and perhaps state and now he will have less worry about reserve material. The line will be composed of practically all six-footers and should average 165-170 pounds. The pair, with Hartung, form a trio of good ends and when Schaefer is able to play there will be a full quartet. Beside, Abraham can play a tackle and now that there are a number of ends Hartung can be shifted when the need arises. Hartung can play a good game at tackle and guard, beside end and he might even go good enough to play guard, as he is a good runner, a vet guard, were to be used at tackle, but now Kruse may even be returned to his old job to strengthen a position which needs it. Hartung or Abraham might play opposite the Orange leader. The best guard prospects are Papp and Kranhold, though the latter six-footer is inexperienced under fire, but Kruse and Hartung can be held in reserve, Hartung also may battle Rankin, another less experienced man, at center.

The backfield could use additional strength and with the new men, Popp might be shifted to half with Kruse in a few games next year, though his inexperience may be a drawback. Kruse and Johnston, the all-Valley fullback, Kruse also might be used as a plunging halfback to utilize the speed he showed in his first attempt at the high hurdles last spring. He has plenty of weight, and his addition, especially with the Schaefer injury and the chance of more casualties, is the best boost Appleton high could have for a loop title.

NEW FIELD READY

The new practice field is about ready for use. Due to the able work of Harry Cameron of the manual training department and his assistants, the field is across from the Appleton Chair Co. between W. Spencer, S. Outagamie, W. Fourth and S. Douglas-sets. The entire field has been mowed and the bay has been raked off by the workers. The goal posts were erected at either end this week and Tuesday the field will be marked off with the usual line chalkmarks. Two buses will be furnished for the athletes each afternoon by the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Co., leaving the high school at 4 o'clock and returning to the school from the field at 6 o'clock. This saves the gridgers a long walk and gives them longer practice periods, beside saving the school possible responsibility for accidents as might happen when the boys took the railroad tracks to the old Lawrence field.

Tile Follows Rule
It is a matter of record that pitchers, after leading the majors, usually follow up with a poor season. George Fife of Cleveland is certainly living up to that precedent.

COOKMEN MAY PLAY

3 WEEKEND BATTLES

Meet Bays on Saturday, Kaws on Sunday and New London on Monday

Kimberly—Kimberly though scheduled for one league game this weekend will probably see action against three different teams in as many days. On Saturday the second game of the season will be played with Kimberly playing on the Green Sox home diamond at Green Bay. Lewellen, LaCrosse and Scheuette will be at the disposal of the Green Bay management for this game, while Kimberly will have the choice of Roehrick, "Boots" Lamers or Popp. On Sunday the revamped Kaukauna line-up will be met by Kimberly to do battle against the Papermakers. This will be a league game and to hold on to the top in the league it is necessary for the K. C. outfit to hand the Kaws a trimming. This will be no easy job according to dope. Kaukauna handed Neenah a double beating two weeks ago and since then Kimberly has lost a game to Neenah. According to dope, with Les Smith in the Kaukauna lineup, Kimberly will have its hands full. There is also a possibility that the K. C. team will play a game against the New London team on Labor Day at that city. This would be a non-league game also, but would help to keep the Kimberly squad on edge for the remaining games of the season, which are a real lineup of tough ones.

TWO STARS OUT

Len Smith and "Shorty" Roehrick will be out of the Kimberly lineup when the Kaukauna squad comes to Kimberly. Add to this the fact that Boots Lamers is suffering from a bum knee and things are none too bright for a Kimberly win.

Ticer Flowers, Atlanta, won from Joe Anderson, Covington, Ky., (19.)

Zimmerman's Veto Fails To Halt Little's Plans

Madison.—Wisconsin's dream of a new athletic field house was only momentarily shattered by Gov. Zimmerman's veto of the $300,000 appropriation. Undaunted by the disappointment of the state executive's unfavorable action, Director George Little is proceeding along other lines with his usual tireless energy. George Little realizes the great need for a larger indoor plant and he will not be satisfied until the ground has been broken for the erection of this new field house. The Badger athletic chief is not crying because of the recent setback, regardless of the many months of planning and striving to secure state aid for his project. The value of Wisconsin athletics and the new intramural system were sold to the state. The passage of the field house bill in both houses with but ten votes in opposition was proof of this. Encouraged by this support and not discouraged by the Governor's veto, Little is laboring manfully to secure the necessary department with the other facilities they so sorely need. A survey of the new field houses

REFFKE, BOYLE TO HURL TWO WEEKEND GAMES FOR LOCALS

Southpaw to Face Green Sox at Bay Sunday; Refke Against Neenah Here

Hans Boyle, a southpaw, and Orville Refke, will be the starting hurlers for the Appleton baseball team of the Fox River Valley league Sunday and Monday when it faces Green Bay and Oshkosh in loop struggles. Boyle will toe the mound against the Bays Sunday at Green Bay and Refke will oppose the Neenahites here on Labor day.

Appleton has split even with the Bays this year, winning the last game played 10-9, when Kranzsch and Boyle were battered from the mound and Refke finished. Boyle looks much better now than at that time and he will attempt a comeback. He let the heavy-hitting Don's down with five scattered hits, six frames last Sunday, before succumbing to a great attack to lose the battle. It was his first attempt at a full nine frames for two months and he noticed it. Now with that game and a few practices this week he will be in real shape for a full year. His control, a weak point last year, was good against the Don's. Neenah has beaten Appleton twice this year, taking a 4-0 verdict here in a hurler's duel between Nixon and Starnagel, and winning at Neenah, 18-5, by battering Starnagel and Crowe off the hill. The first game was lost in one bad frame when Cy Sholeskie homered with two on. Refke has not opposed Neenah this year and his peculiar motion may bother the Larsen crew.

College Captains

LEARY OF MARQUETTE

Milwaukee — That Irishman who fented a punt back of his own goal line and then threw a pass to Quarter-back O'Keefe that resulted in the winning touch-down against Alabama Poly last year, will captain the Marquette team this fall. He is Joe Leary, of Janesville, and he uses his 175 pounds at fullback.

Leary has developed to a brilliant grid performer under the tutelage of Coach Frank Murray. He is equally good on defense and offense, and is a fullback of the plunging variety.

He is a real triple-threat artist in that he is the key man in Marquette's aerial attack and the punter of the team.

Marquette faces a tough schedule this year, with two intercollegiate games and three Marquette Valley openers to be played, but supporters of the Milwaukee school feel that the team will wade safely through such a tough schedule.

The Marquette captain will be a senior this year and has played two years on the team. He is expected to be in the running for All-American honors from the start this season.

KENOSHA MAN TAKES

2ND HORSESHOE TITLE

Milwaukee.—Harvey Elmerson, Kenosha, won his second leg on the state championship trophy of the Wisconsin Horseshoe Pitchers association on Thursday at the state fair and will retain state title and cup for another year.

A victory next year will give him permanent possession of the trophy. The Kenosha pitcher outclassed the field. He maintained a grand average of 52½ per cent of ringers in the round robin and was not defeated in any of his 19 matches.

Vern Licht, forty-eight of Lodi, but now living in Milwaukee, was runner up to Elmerson winning 17 of his 19 matches.

Elmerson beat Licht in the round robin 50 to 34 and defeated Seymour Johnson, Madison, former champion, 50 to 43.

Thomas Reverses Form

Pitcher Al Thomas of Chicago, after nine straight wins early in the year and 12 wins against 4 defeats, has been able to win only two games in his last 10 starts since that time.

HE MUST BE EDUCATED

GORDON RHODES

When Gordon Rhodes, star University of Utah athlete, finishes his college career, he is going to get a contract from the New York Yankees. Not before. That's in keeping with the new policy of big leagues—to have star college athletes get their degrees before taking a shot at professional baseball. Rhodes, pitching in the Butte Mines independent league this summer, won nine straight games.

15 LETTERMEN ARE BACK FOR CARROLL

Only Six Stars Lost from Crack Pioneer Eleven of Last Two Years

Waukesha.—A call to the football field on Monday, Sept. 12, has been issued by Coach Norris Armstrong, Carroll college football mentor, in a letter to his gridiron athletes. He informs his 40 proteges that a big season is ahead and that to accomplish anything against good opponents real training is required.

Although hard hit by graduation, Coach Armstrong believes there is still enough timber left to turn out a Pioneer eleven of the same calibre of recent years.

Returning for the first practice session are 15 lettermen, captained by Hampden (Ham) Catterton, versatile lineman from Kenosha, who will take his position either at center or at tackle to fill the gap left open by ex-Captain Maynard Black of Shavano.

Six teammates of the 1926 machine which moved down Ripon, Lake Forest, Lombard, and Milton, and emerged from scoreless ties in games with Lawrence and Milwaukee Normal, are Black, Hill, Stacy, West, Blahnik, and Loy have become ex-officio members of Orange teams.

The lettermen to return are Capt. Catterton; Earl Jerzawsky, guard, and Leo Bazal, end, Manitowish; Charles Lange, quarterback, Racine; Emer, Lund, halfback, and Leslie Uecker, center, both of Marinette; Fred Bechtler, guard, and George Hoffman, tackle, of Watertown; Herbert Bizer, end, Medford; Kenneth Mann, Jerome Feag, fullback, Waukesha; John Feag, end, halfback, Savana, Ill.; Allen Newman, halfback, Geneva, Ill.; Art Dugan, end, White Earth, Minn.; Walter Fellenz, halfback, Marshfield.

A wealth of last year's freshman material, including the right halfback, together with what is expected to constitute a long list of high school stars who have made application to enroll at Carroll.

VALLEY SPORTS CHATTER

This is the season for all-Valley league baseball selections and many of the fans probably are busy right now trying to dope out the best nine players in the loop. It is not a cinch job by any means as there are at least three or four capable diamond knights for each post on the nine.

Additional seats will be set up at the City Hall report Sunday Bay to handle the expected larger crowds at the Packer games. A new fence now surrounds the stadium, which now covers more territory. The extra bleachers are to be erected on the west end of the gridiron, according to present plans.

It is not likely that the pennant winning club in the Valley wheel will engage in any post-season series this fall as the league schedule does not terminate until Oct. 2 and by this time there is so much football talk in the air that baseball attractions would not be highly profitable.

If it came to all around ability, Powell of Menasha would probably be the most valuable player in the Valley. The Pails handy man started off the season as a pitcher, then he switched over to play a snap mid at third base by injuries and of late has been doing a classy job as a lack-stop.

As yet no successor has been named for the K. C. athletic director's post yet. Kimberly although it is known that the paper mill executives have been flooded with applications, Ossie Cooke will step out of office soon as he starts his law course at Wisconsin about the middle of the month.

De Temple, who has starred in Valley conference for two years, should be Marquette's ace behind the line this season. Dione, who played and pitched in '26, will probably be shifted to a lack. Capt. Peterson, Lund and Ucker, a first class center, are sure to be the mainstays of the Northerners' front wall.

Matty's Control Test
The late Charlie Mattheison is generally credited with having the greatest control of any major league pitcher in the history of the game. It was a common thing for him to work a game without passing a batter.

ORANGE WARRIORS HAVE NEW MATERIAL FOR 1927-28 YEAR

Appleton High Spends $400 for Grid, Cage Equipment; Numbers for Gridders

Appleton high school's athletic teams will be as well equipped for hard seasons this year as any prep squad in the middle-west. As was revealed this week, when it was announced that $400 had been spent for football and basketball material for 1927-28. The equipment is the most complete that the local school has ever had in one year, according to H. H. Helble, principal.

NUMBERS ON BACKS

Football equipment consists of new sweat shirts for the squad, new shoes, pants and helmets and seven new spalling footballs. Besides this 65 pairs of old shoes have been repaired and recalled and are in first-class condition for rough usage. For the first time this year the orange jerseys, which the local gridgers made well-known last fall, will be equipped with large blue numerals for identification purposes, much like a college or university squad. School authorities believe that the numerals will be a great benefit. The jerseys were purchased last fall.

COLORED SWEAT PANTS

New basketball equipment consists of 12 orange jerseys, with royal blue letters; 12 royal blue jerseys with orange letters; 12 royal blue sweat shirts with orange letters; 12 dozen pair of socks and 12 pairs of royal blue molen skin sweat pants. The sweat pants also are a new local departure, along college lines. A few valley high schools already have adopted the sweat pants, but they usually are plain gray in color, such as used for track.

RED GRIDDERS IN EARLY PRACTICES

Coach Doehling Expects 50 Men for Ripon Squad; Many Vets Back

Ripon.—Pre-season football training has already started for Ripon's football men. In the letters that Coach Doehling has sent out he has included a pre-season training schedule that his men must follow. This will enable them to catch up on their training and cause less "gains in their preliminary practice on the field. These "home exercises" include short distance sprints, handling the ball, running for passes and plenty of tennis or hand ball.

The coach lays emphasis on the fact that swimming is of no material aid in hardening up for football and that hard labor does not improve the wind. That is why he believes in his pre-season training.

Doehling and his assistant, Russell Ruppe, expect fifty men on Sept. 12. This date is the one set by the Midwest conference as the earliest any school may start practice. The letter men from last year who will return are Clifton, Burns, ends; Hamley, Wheeler, Anderson, guards; Strzyski, center and guard; Murelich and Thomas, quarterbacks; Halverson, K. Mann, Masegum, halves; Jaspers, Bradrich, McBrady, R. Stuart, arm men with varsity experience that would show up well this year.

The freshmen now eligible for varsity who will probably be used are Pine and Smith, ends; Donald Martin, quarterback; Stauer, Hotgate, Richardson, tackles; Oliver, Kapelle, Halverson, guards; Rehl, Seering, Heinz, Zeff and J. Halverson, halves.

With this wealth of material the season's outlook is sufficiently bright to create some optimism in the Crimson camp. The schedule, however, is stiff and Coach Doehling will have plenty of grooming to do in making a championship squad.

Let us set the stage for a play that no longer can take the place on the gridiron, unless the rulemakers later decide to revert back to the old rule. The score is 13-7 against the team with the ball in its possession. It decides to kick and the punter gets away a spiral that carries to the 25-yard line of the team in the lead.

Let us see the player handling the ball picks it out of the air, he is tackled hard and the ball pops out of his hands. An alert player out of the trailing team, following the play closely, recovers the fumble and runs 25 yards for a touchdown. The score is tied. In a few seconds a fumble has changed the entire complexion of the play.

The above recital is just an air castle of the old days. When the ball is fumbled on the 25-yard line it becomes dead at the point of recovery and cannot be advanced beyond that spot.

Removal of the penalty for a fumble takes away the premium on hard, set, clean football. When you take the gamble out of the game, you kill the thrill.

CRIPPLED BOY HOPES

TO MAKE BAY ELEVEN

Green Bay.—Gustave Warwick, 15, of this city, hopes to make the West High School grid eleven this year despite a recent operation in which several square inches of skin were grafted to his body from the arm put to the waist.

The grafted skin was taken from his leg and consequently at the present time he is unable to walk but members of his family have volunteered to contribute some of their skin so that he might be re-cured.

Gustave was burned when a child and the wound did not heal and it was not until recently, when the wound threatened to make him a cripple, did doctors suggested the operation.

CUBS FINALLY LET GO GRIP ON FIRST

Pirates Remove Bruins by Thrilling 4-3 Win; Lead by Single Point

Pennantville used to look like just around the corner for Chicago's Cubs, but Friday there was a different aspect.

The Pirates wrested first place from the Bruins after a stubborn battle Thursday, Chicago going down by 4-3 as the Corsairs assumed the supremacy by a single percentage point.

Lee Meadows put the skids under the Cubs by keeping nine hits well distributed and in the ninth by retiring his opponents after a run was in, two on the bases and one out. Hal Carlson was the loser.

An open date kept the Cards and Giants idle while rain washed out Brooklyn's fracas at Boston. The Phils and Reds were without scheduled games.

The Giants are but two games from the crest and have back of them a winning streak of seven straight. The Tigers shook off the jinx tagging on their heels through eight straight games and subdued the Browns, 3-4, by staging a four-run rally in the tenth. Rice, Williams and McManus hit homers.

DENNY, CHRISTOPH TO AID CATLIN ON GRID

Mark S. Catlin, Lawrence college football coach, will be assisted this fall by A. C. Denny, Blue director of athletics, and George C. Christoph, acting director of athletics last year and regular freshman athletic director. Both men are expected to aid Catlin with the varsity and second squads, though Christoph also may aid with the freshmen. William Ashe, Kaukauna, 1926 freshman coach, is expected to handle that job again.

BIGGER, BETTER RADIO RECEIVERS NOW WIDELY USED

Crystal Tubes Now Practically Extinct; Quality of Sets Steadily Raised

BY ISREAL KLEIN

This year's radio show in New York, which officially opens the season for the entire country, reveals a general trend toward bigger and better receivers that make those of only two or three years ago look like antiquities.

So marked is this change in receiver design and in the improvement of related appliances, that today practically no crystal receivers on which we used to depend for entertainment, are on sale. Thus the crystal set, with its cat-whisker and earphones, goes the way of the pioneer single-cylindered automobile of a score of years ago.

In its place comes the multi-tubed receiver of highly improved design. Even in this radio has shown a marked advancement. For the three-tube set, that used to be the next step above the crystal receiver, now is fast declining. In fact, even this has negligible space at the immense radio show of 1927.

For today is the day of the five to ten-tube receiver. It is the day of single control, of compact well-built units, shielded thoroughly against internal interferences and designed along the most advanced plans of regenerative and neutralizing control. There are super-heterodynes, too, but those that are truly practicable may be limited to one make.

GREATER POWER

The prevailing mode is the regenerative receiver, with from two to four stages of radio frequency amplification. All now are redesigned to accommodate the latest types of power tubes, for detection and amplification.

No show, however, is complete without its innovations, and this one is no exception. So we find radical changes shown for the first time, all of them attempts toward improvement in radio reception.

Most noteworthy is the trend toward reception without the use of batteries. This implies the introduction of a new type of tube that is connected to the alternating current wires of the house and rectifies this current itself.

TUBES ON TRIAL

Three forms of this tube stand out. One is the McCullough type, which employs a heating unit to throw a steady flow of electrons through the tube. Another is almost similar to this, but of different design. The third, being perfected in the General Electric laboratories, has a direct filament connection within to rectify the A. C. current and produce an even electron flow free from any bothersome hum.

These types of tubes, however, are still in their experimental stage. Receivers must be especially designed for them.

With the 6,500,000 radio receivers already in use, it would appear best for engineers to design an A. C. tube that would not require rewiring, or perhaps junking, of the old sets. Until this occurs, the prevailing type of tube will continue popular.

The lack of a perfect A. C. tube, however, has led by the introduction of practical battery eliminators, especially those eliminating the cumbersome B-batteries. The eliminators of today, of which there are almost a hundred different makes, are well built and efficient. They are made for variable voltages and most of them are prepared for the high voltages required for the high power amplifier tubes.

A-ELIMINATOR COMING

As for the A or filament battery, the majority vote still goes to the storage type with trickle battery charger to keep it constantly charged. There are all sorts of combinations of these, but all follow this one idea.

However, there are signs of development of an A-battery eliminator, consisting of a series of transformers and chokes, free from acid and water, and more compact than the former A-battery combination. Several are shown this fall, all claiming complete freedom from the objectionable A. C. hum.

Improved types of loud speakers complete the triumvirate that make up a receiving unit of highly improved design. The loud speakers today are of two types—the cone, and the exponential horn. The latter is the latest introduction in radio, after it had proved itself of particular value in the new types of phonographs.

BETTER SPEAKER

There's a further improvement in the oval-shaped cone speaker back of which is the argument that this finally takes care of music and voice from the lowest to the highest notes.

The receivers themselves are attractively designed. Greater attention than ever has been paid to appearance, on the belief that the receivers are important pieces of furniture capable of upholding their own in the best of drawing rooms.

And in conformity with the advancement in manufacture and standardization of parts, prices generally have come down. A good five-tube receiver nowadays can be bought for a little over $100 fully equipped. But still the prices vary so that we may find a receiver selling for as low as $50 alongside one priced at $250—a marked example of high class cabinet work in addition to superior radio engineering.

MARQUETTE GRIDDERS INSPIRED BY MUSIC

Milwaukee—Music will play its part in inspiring the Marquette university football team on to a successful season this fall, and officials of the Marquette 60 piece military band already are making plans for the organizations appearance at the 1927 gridiron contests. The Rev. Joseph McLaughlin, S. J., faculty director of the band, has just returned from a visit at Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass., where he obtained the football music of Holy Cross, the Nov. 12 football opponents of Marquette in Milwaukee. The Grinnell and Iowa State music also will be secured to be played at the Oct. 29 and Nov. 24 games. It is likely that the Marquette band will take one trip with the team this fall, either to the Creighton game in Omaha or the St. Louis university clash in St. Louis.

WORK IS INCOMPLETE IN 2 CITY SCHOOLS

Repairs Will Be Continued,
Causing Slight Inconvenience to Pupils

Repairs and improvements on the public school buildings will be completed when school opens Tuesday, Sept. 6 except in the Lincoln and Washington buildings, the maintenance committee reported after an inspection of the buildings on Thursday. The first shipment of blackboard slate delivered for the four new classrooms at the Washington school was broken and the second shipment has not arrived. Classes will be held in the rooms but the lack of blackboards will be an inconvenience, the superintendent said. Efforts are being made by the committee to trace the shipments so that the blackboards may be installed as soon as possible. Delays in finishing the installation of the new heating plant at the Lincoln school will necessitate work on the boilers after school opens. The work will not interfere with school sessions, it was said. A few radiators remain to be painted in Wilson Junior high schools all work is done except the new storerooms being added to the buildings. These will be finished within a few days, it was believed. Store room work at the McKinley school probably will be finished Friday, the committee reported.

Work on the gong system at the Columbus school was being completed Thursday.

Work at the First ward, Jefferson, Franklin and Richmond schools has been completed.

WOMEN DIETICIANS TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Madison — (AP)—Many dieticians in larger Wisconsin hospitals and industrial plants are planning to attend the conference of the American Dietetic association at St. Louis Oct. 17-19. More than a score of the persons who are expert in arranging diets and determining the value of foods are expected to attend the convention as Badger representatives. Home economics teachers, in larger high schools and from colleges of the state, hospital diet supervisors and health supervisors in a few of the large industrial concerns of the state are expected to make up this representation.

Conservative Judge Nathan Miller Mentioned As Next U. S. Steel Head

WILL HE SUCCEED GARY?

NATHAN
MILLER

The New York Stock Exchange is proverbially skittish. Let a day's course of events deviate from the normal path ever so slightly the stock market is apt to respond with a gyrating succession of falling price quotations.

Yet when Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, died suddenly, the market remained firm. U. S. Steel common dropped five-eighths of a point; then, before the day was over, it rallied and even went up a trifle.

There probably are several reasons why the death of one of the nation's leading industrialists failed to disturb the market. One of them, undoubtedly, is Judge Nathan L. Miller.

Judge Miller, it is generally expected, will succeed Judge Gary as arbiter of the great steel combine. The behavior of the market on the day of Judge Gary's death gives a hint to his character and reputation.

HAS NOTABLE RECORD
Little known to the public at large, Judge Miller is both well and favorably known in the financial world. He is known as an able corporation lawyer, a man who has played the political game shrewdly and honorably, a financial advisor who is eminently "safe" and conservative but who is far from a reactionary.

His life story is remarkably like that of Judge Gary himself. Like Judge Gary, Judge Miller was born on a farm and knew the long, hard work of a farmer's boy in his youth. Like Judge Gary, he left the farm and turned to the law, starting as a struggling, poorly-paid small town attorney. Like Judge Gary, he served for a time on the judicial bench of his home state.

Yet the similarity is not complete. Miller, for example, mixed in politics more than Judge Gary ever did. His connection with the steel industry came comparatively late in his career. Judge Gary grew up with it.

Nathan L. Miller was born in a cross roads village in Cortland county, N. Y., in 1866. His boyhood was spent as the boyhood of most farmers boys of that generation were spent—long days of toil, with no luxuries. He had the ordinary schooling of his day—approximately three months a year—and he had no time to learn any sport except boxing. This should be stated, was forced upon him. As a boy he was undersized, and had to learn to defend himself from the town bullies. He learned so well that by the time he had reached his teens his associates had learned to respect his abilities.

BECAME REPUBLICAN
When young Nathan was 15 two things happened to him: he decided to enter the law as a profession, and he became a Republican. Born the son of a die-hard Democrat, who was almost ready to fight when Samuel Tilden was defeated by Rutherford B. Hayes, the boy was captivated by the glittering figure of James G. Blaine, and his admiration led him into the Republican camp—to his father's great disgust. He has been a Republican ever since.

Becoming a Republican in a rock-ribbed Democratic family was easier, however, than becoming a lawyer. Young Miller had little money; a college education was out of the question. So he became a country school teacher, working in a lawyer's office in the evenings and painfully digesting facts about law in his spare moments. His legal education had progressed for perhaps two years when he entered politics. There was a Republican county rally, and the speaker of the occasion failed to arrive. Someone suggested to the committee in charge that the young school teacher could make a good speech. Miller was pressed into service, and although he had a scant hour to prepare his remarks he spoke so well that he won a regular place for himself as a campaign speaker.

MARRIED TEACHER
In 1892, when he was 25, he took his first step upward, winning the position of county school commissioner, at $1200 a year. In his tours of inspection of the county's schools he made the acquaintance of Miss Elizabeth Devern, who taught in the Marathion Academy. After a time Miss Devern became Mrs. Nathan Miller.

Miller was admitted to the bar the same year he became school commissioner. In a few years he had developed his practice so that he was considered the county's outstanding attorney. Due to this and his ability as a stump speaker, he became chairman of the Cortland county Republican committee in 1898 and in 1901 was elected Cortland corporation counsel. And in 1902, so favorably was he known to leaders of the New York Republican party, he was made an associate justice of the state supreme court.

Judge Miller remained on the bench for 12 years, advancing to the court of appeals in 1913. In 1915 he retired to re-enter private practice, pleading that he could not support his family—he had seven daughters—on a jurist's salary.

On his resignation he moved to Syracuse, where he became counsel for a large corporation at $50,000.000 a year. In 1920 the Republican party drafted him for governor. He served two years, suffering defeat by Al Smith in 1922. Then he re-entered private practice moving to New York City and entering an alliance with the steel industry that grew closer and closer as the years went by.

KNOWN AS "CZAR"
Judge Miller has the reputation of being a "czar," of riding over suggestions of his subordinates and of insisting on following his own ideas regardless of opposition. Those who know him best, however, say that these reports are wrong; that he is a capable, firm executive but that he has a markedly "human" side, however little the general public may see of it.

And, though he is very conservative in his views on business and po-itics, he could not be classed as a reactionary—not, at least, by his own definition.

"A reactionary," he said, "is a man living in the past, a man who is looking backward instead of forward. I believe in looking ahead—although I also believe in using the light of past experience as a guide."

Older Motors Can Have a New Outlook!

SOME motors are forced bravely to "get along" on ordinary fuel throughout the period of their newness—and beyond.

But as with overtaxed eyes, there comes a time when the outlook is not so good. There are no longer so many untroubled miles to be seen ahead.

Blurred and fantastic forms, detected first as trifling evidences of impaired efficiency, loom larger and more menacingly as long lay-ups and bills for repairs . . . The motor's keen edge is gone.

According to make of car, type of driving and badness of fuel, that period may come anywhere — at five, ten or twenty thousand miles — or less or more.

But once it's reached and passed you might as well refuse proper spectacles to declining eyes as to deny that motor the added jump and revigoration of

Wadhams 370

— the Year-Round Gasoline

370 will surprise you with its results on old motors.

It will not perform miracles that could only be accomplished by re-boring, re-fitting or re-building — any more than an oculist can make new eyes.

But it can — and does — and will — give you a new outlook for future miles — perhaps better miles than any you have had in the past under the handicap of low grade fuel.

Sharper snap on the getaway, greater independence from poor valve action — greater power because of quick full explosion instead of dull burning. Less seepage into the crankcase. And what does force through — being all gasoline instead of kerosene — speedily evaporates, preventing further oil-dilution damage.

Its belated spur may have only one draw-back — the reproach that 370 was not used from the outset.

Finer than ever in Quality Lower than ever in Price

Today's Pontiac Six is the finest Pontiac Six ever built. Not merely does it offer the fashionable smartness of Fisher bodies in new Duco colors, but it brings to the buyer those many refinements which have been made in Pontiac Six design since the first Pontiac Six was introduced.

Although the original Pontiac Six was such a revolutionary value that it set a world record in the number of buyers it won during its first year—

—the Pontiac Six you buy today is even smoother in operation, even more sparing in the attention it requires, even more luxurious and more distinguished in appearance!

Yet it sells for less than ever—the result of price reductions made possible by economies of increased volume production in the world's newest and finest motor car plant.

Unless you have actually driven today's Pontiac Six—actually studied the richness of its Fisher bodies and its exclusive features of modern design—you cannot know what thrilling power and smoothness, what thorough road mastery, and what enduring satisfaction can now be obtained in a six at $745!

New lower prices on all passenger car body types. (Effective July 15)

MARKETS FILLED WITH VEGETABLES

Prices for Canning Fruits
Now Are Near Minimum,
Dealers Say

Sweet corn and sweet potatoes are plentiful on the vegetable market this week. Prices are reasonable on these two products but how long they will remain in local stores is a question, because weather conditions have not been favorable, especially in the case of corn, to warrant a large, unlimited supply.

There are plenty of fruits available for canning purposes the warm weather of the week has made housewives reluctant to do any canning. Grapes are becoming plentiful and canning peaches were listed at $1.10 a crate.

Vegetables were selling as follows: Cabbage 10c a bunch, cabbage 10c a head, beets 10c a bunch, red and green peppers 5c apiece, turnips 10c a pound, cucumbers for pickling $2 to $3 a bushel, eating cucumbers 5c each, pumpkins 10c apiece, sweet corn 25c a dozen, sweet potatoes 3c a pound, green onions 5c a bunch, celery 15c a stalk, onions 5c a pound, head lettuce 15c to 20c a bunch, and potatoes 5c a peck. Tomatoes were listed at 10 to 20c a pound.

Fruit prices include green grapes at 15c a pound, peaches at 25 to 50c a dozen, canning peaches $1.10 a crate, pears 40 to 60c a dozen, lemons 50c a dozen, oranges 35c a dozen, cantaloupes 10 to 25c apiece, plums 15 to 25c a dozen, purple grapes 50c a basket, bananas 10c a pound, honeydew melons 35c to 40c apiece, Jonathan apples 5c apiece, Whitney crab apples 5c a peck and Dandies apples 40c a peck. Coccinuts were selling at 10c apiece.

FRENCH BUILD TRUCK THAT PICKS UP LOAD

Paris—(AP)—A new truck that picks up its load off the ground and carries it underneath the chassis is saving time and labor in French industrial plants. The chassis and motor stand seven feet high, on four legs that carry the wheels. There is a clearance of five feet under the framework and four right-angled plates, on ratchets, stick inwards from the four legs. The truck is run over the load which is set a few inches off the ground. The four plates, like hands, reach under the weight to motor-power and the truck thus carries its load. They are elevated by the ratchet's load.

Various devices, such as platforms, are used so that four iron hands can pick up the load.

BIG SURPRISE
Johnny, 10 years old, applied for a job as grocery boy for the summer. The grocer wanted a serious-minded youth, so he put Johnny to a little test.

"Well, my boy, what would you do with a million dollars?"
"Oh, gee, I don't know—I wasn't expecting so much at the start,"

Oklahoma Mother Thanks Providence That Sent Her Quadruplet Daughters: They Now Do All Housework

Hollis, Okla.—Nearly one quarter of a million persons journey yearly to a little one-street town out here in Oklahoma for the purpose of seeing the only four quadruplet daughters in the world.

They are Roberta, Mona, Mary and Leola Keyes, quadruplet daughters of a family who gracefully permit the crowd to come and stare, but who have firmly refused any sort of exploitation for their girls for long years.

Only a little while ago the Keyes turned down a $52,000 a year vaudeville offer.

"I'd have to stop living the lazy life if my girls went on the stage," says their mother, Mrs. Jang Keyes, explaining that the entire management of the home is budgeted among the four daughters, while she herself sits and reads and bosses and thanks kind Providence which sent her the only four quadruplet daughters in the world.

FOUR BIRTHDAY CAKES
The Keyes girls had their twelfth birthday party not very long ago—a party with four cakes frosted in pink and blue and green and yellow, four blazing candles atop each cake, and four girls as like as the proverbial peas in a pod, blowing out the candles with one mighty puff.

Twelve years ago when a startled father first beheld his four daughters and frantically attempted to figure out a way to tell them apart, he decided that they must always be put to bed or seated at the table in the same order, Roberta on the outside, then Mona, then Mary, and then Leola.

Time has changed many things in the Keyes household, but never that sitting and standing and sleeping arrangement.

TELLS THEM APART

"When the quadruplets go to school or church or to the movies, it's Roberta outside, then Mona, Mary and at a party, or, awaiting turns to be spanked. It's Roberta, Mona, Mary and Leola.

Even fun-loving girls that they are, the quadruplets have never dared try "tiddling Dad and Mom" by forming in reverse or biggedly-piggledy. That has been made the arch crime, the unforgivable sin, of the family.

Twelve years ago Ma Keyes winced a little at the job of rearing four all-of-a-size daughters. She was in the market for sympathy.

TWO EXACTLY ALIKE
Although all four girls look so much alike that even their parents can not tell one from the other, two of them, Mona and Roberta, look so much alike that they can't tell themselves apart.

Once upon a time in a "palace of mirrors" at an amusement park, Roberta walked smack into a mirror, thinking she was meeting Mona.

Health for their daughters has been the main concern of the girls' parents, and education with special attention to music and dancing, came next.

They have high marks in school, love to dance and cook and swim and play, are just as normal as any girls who have no doubles and don't have to walk first or second from the right in order to keep from being mixed up.

BELGIUM AVIATORS PLAN LONG FLIGHT

Would Hop from Belgium to Mouth of Congo River in Africa

Brussels, Belgium—(AP)—Out of a king's vision of 48-hour air service between Brussels and Leopoldville, in the Belgian Congo of Africa, has come a plan of two Belgian aviators, Lieut. G. Medaets and Lieut. Jean Verhaegen.

spanked. It's Roberta, Mona, Mary and Leola.

Even fun-loving girls that they are, the quadruplets have never dared try "tiddling Dad and Mom" by forming in reverse or biggedly-piggledy. That has been made the arch crime, the unforgivable sin, of the family.

en, to fly from Belgium to the mouth of the Congo river. The nonstop flight to the land of the heart of darkness is being made at the request of King Albert, one of commercial aviation's most enthusiastic patrons.

Lieutenants Medaets and Verhaegen have already flown the 5,583 miles from Brussels to Leopoldville, taking twelve days for the flight. If they can span the jungle and the Brussels boulevards in a nonstop flight, King Albert believes that much of the world's fear of Africa's wilds and isolation will vanish.

The king and queen are giving unstinted support to the project. A member of the royal family is expected to christen a Breguet plane for the flight. It is considered possible that Princess Astrid will give her name to the plane.

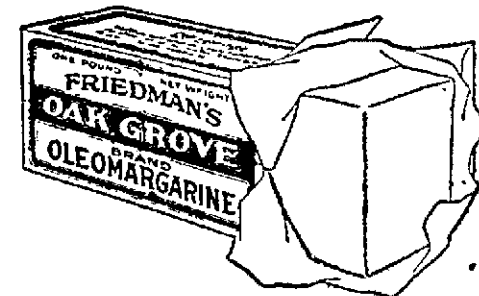

Although the distance of the contemplated flight is just about the same as that covered by Byrd and his crew in the America, the scientific data resulting is expected to be entirely different in character because of the wilderness over which the Belgians will fly. The effect of the equatorial heat on atmospheric conditions is something about which aviators know very little. Mail planes now operating in the Belgian Congo have supplied the bulk of what is known of African flying conditions. Extension of the African air mail and eventual establishment of a direct air service with Europe is the dream of King Albert for the Belgian Congo.

Medaets, who is 31, flew a military plane for many months during and after the war. His companion, Verhaegen, is the ace of Belgian navigators. He is only 29. Recently he had a narrow escape from death when his plane crashed at the inauguration of a new aerodrome near Nivelles. The pilot with him was killed.

Gold wire has been drawn so fine that 3,799 yards of it weigh only one ounce.

HAVEN'T YOU FOUND OUT ABOUT
OAK GROVE
MARGARINE
YET?

People are spreading it on their bread. Grumpy husbands find it on their toast at breakfast and break out into smiles. The children whoop with joy when they see it on the table at lunch. Everyone in the family welcomes it at dinner, for Oak Grove Margarine makes vegetables more delicious and adds that ultimate tastiness to gravies and meats.

Housewives are finding out that pies, cakes, hot breads and cookies have a more delicate texture when shortened with Oak Grove. Everybody is eating it, one way or another, three times a day, every day.

Oak Grove Margarine

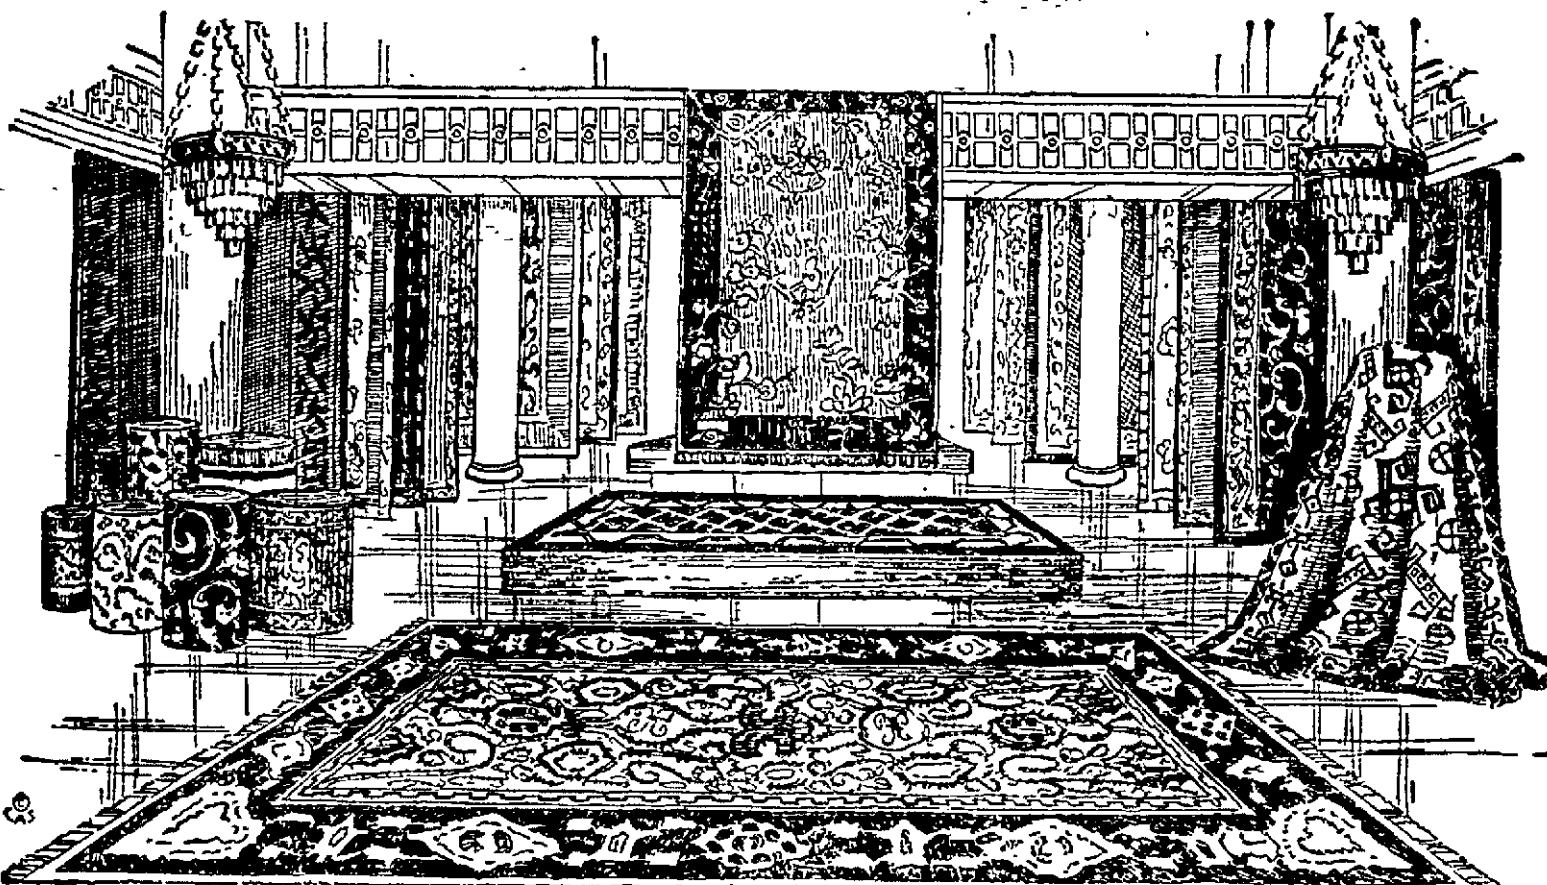

makes a good meal even better. It spreads smoothly on bread. It is the sweetest, purest, most delicious margarine you can use. It is made fresh daily under United States government inspection. Try a pound. If you are not satisfied, your grocer will cheerfully refund your money.

Corn Fritters

1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups corn, 2 eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, pepper to taste, 2 tablespoons melted Oak Grove.

Method: Mix and sift dry ingredients, add corn and egg yolks beaten until light. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop the batter in hot fat by spoonfuls and fry until brown. Drain on brown paper.

New Victor Records Out Today

20820 "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi"—Waltz
75c "Sweetheart Memories"—Waltz
Waring's Pennsylvanians
Two waltz records worth particular note. The "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," in an orthophonic recording, is one of the best recent records, for the slow waltz. The wind effects are soft and fine, and a mandolin tremolo adds a bit of pure musical interest. Tom Waring and the orchestra have the vocal refrain. The companion number, with the same forces, exhibits a variety and interest of rhythm quite unusual in the dragging slow waltz of the present time.

20819 "What Do We Do on a Dew-Dew-Dewy Day?"—Fox Trot—Nat Shilkret and the Victor Orch.
75c "Is It Possible? (That She Loves Me)"—Fox Trot
Johnny Hamp's Kentucky Serenaders
Two records, so different in musical style, in a hundred details, yet each appealing to a special type of mind. One is strong, keen, melodious, yet it has force to it; and the same description appertains to the other; but how different they remain. Both approach the "standard" style of the moment, and both have vocal refrains: one by Johnny Marvin, one by Franklin Baur.

20823 "One Sweet Letter From You"—Fox Trot
Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra
75c "I Haven't Told Her, She Hasn't Told Me"—Fox Trot—Johnny Hamp's Kentucky Serenaders
These two fox trots, though their chief appeal is in their novelty, are excellent dances, and they will serve a variety of purposes and a variety of styles, on the public ballroom floor or in the little home dance. In the first one, they have the feature of the regular vocal refrain, with Franklin Baur, Lewis James and Elliot Shaw; and in the second one, Baur has the refrain solo.

20821 "Sweet Marie"
75c "Loved One"
Henry Burr
"Sweet Marie" is a song in which Henry Burr is at his very best, according to the standards which his millennial public have so faithfully applied to him. In a song with a true fox trot rhythm and the catchiest of refrains, he tells of an unknown soldier's love for his "Sweet Marie," and of his child's call to the telephone operator to give her "No Man's Land." The song must not be confused with the "Sweet Marie" in vogue thirty-five years ago. On the other side of the record is a waltz love song, also in the artist's very best manner.

JACK LOCKWILL AT SUMMER CAMP

Lockwill, like the three boys who had made the young Indian a helpless captive, was from the summer camp across the lake. The camps were owned and managed by "Brick" Judge, Jack's guardian and mentor. Already, though he had been there less than a week, Jack had been annoyed and threatened by Saunders. Now the bully's face became malicious as he gazed at the new arrival on the scene of action.

"Why, if it isn't that pretty baby, o' Judge's pet, I'll eat my hat!" shouted Saunders. "I've been waiting four days for a chance to knock his block off!"

As the young ruffian sprang forward, the hickory switch in Jack's hand cut the air with a hissing sound and curled round the legs of the charging boy.

"Oh, murder!" yelled the bully, leaping into the air as the tough switch stung his legs. "Oh, wow!" "How does your own medicine taste?" asked Lockwill, slashing him again and bringing another yapping scream from the fellow. "Hey, Lizard! Hey, Peewee!" bawled Saunders. "Go for him! Get into it! Slug him!" Rushing up behind Jack, the one called Lizard hit him back of the ear.

PROPERTY OWNERS WANT METOXEN-AVE PAVED

Kaukauna—A petition for paving Metoxen-ave with Warrenite-Bithulmic pavement is being circulated among the taxpayers on this street. On Thursday a little more than half of the homeowners had signed the petition. Residents on this street believe the Bithulmic pavement is more to be desired on a street in the residential district than either plain or re-inforced concrete. The petition will be presented to the council on Tuesday night. The council will decide what type of pavement shall be placed on the streets on which the taxpayers do not inform the council of their choice.

POSTALS WHIP MULFORDS 7 TO 6, TO PREVENT TIE

Kaukauna—The Postals came from behind in an overtime soft ball game Thursday night and defeated Mulford's Clothing team, 7 to 6, thus preventing a triple tie for first place in the Kaukauna Soft Ball league between the Volleyballers, Homans and Mulford's. It was decided to play only six innings but when the government men ran in three runs in the sixth to tie the score it was necessary to play an extra inning to decide the game. The defense kept Mulford's in third place while the Volleyballers remained in a tie for first with Homans' Transfers, both teams having lost a game this week. Andrews Oils gained a game on Mulford's and now are only a half game out of third place. The Bankers dropped from a tie for fifth to the cellar while the Electricians went up to seventh from eighth.

Mulford's—Haas, Robideau, Michel, Brenzel, Webster, Haas, Berens, Bieseman and Brenzel.

APPEAL TO BOARD FOR ORDER TO MOVE
HOUSE BACK OF LINE*Complaint Charges Builder
Violated Zone Ordinance by Enclosing Porch

Two cases growing out of the "enclosed porch" controversy which has been bothering John N. Wetzel, building inspector, during the past two weeks and two other appeals by property owners who were refused building permits will be heard by the board of appeals at the regular monthly meeting next Tuesday morning in the city hall.

Fred F. Wettengel, owner of property on S. Outagamie-st. west of the house at 1219 S. Outagamie-st., to move the house back to the set-back line because, he alleges an "enclosed porch" at the front of the home really is a room and not a porch. Mr. Wettengel says the zoning ordinance reads that only "open stairways and porches, cornices, etc." may extend beyond the set-back line. He contends that if the zoning ordinance meant all porches, including those enclosed, a comma would have been inserted after the words, "open stairways." He contends the ordinance permits only open porches beyond the set-back line.

Oscar Boldt, owner of a residence at 126 S. Victoria-st. recently received a permit to construct a porch. He built an enclosed porch, which extended to the set-back line. Several property owners protested that the "enclosed porch" was really an addition to the home because of a basement beneath, a sleeping room above and a large doorway connecting the porch to the living room.

The building inspector investigated the case and stopped further work on the addition, pending the decision of the board of appeals.

The ordinance committee after a hearing this week, will report to the council at its next meeting recommending that the zoning law be changed to forbid all future additions to homes, whether enclosed or open, to remain back of the established set-back line.

An appeal will be taken by Mrs. J. Schiffer who seeks to build a garage back to the lot line on her property at 511 E. Pacific-st. The zoning law provides for a six-foot rear yard behind the garage and the building inspector refused to grant the permit. Mr. Kahler was refused a permit for an addition to the rear of his home at 511 N. Drew-st. The addition would not provide for sufficient rear yard. Mr. Kahler is appealing his case.

PROPERTY OWNERS OPPOSE NEW BUSINESS DISTRICT

That very little interest is taken in the matter of placing a section of Wisconsin avenue as a local business district was evidenced Thursday night when only eight people attended a hearing conducted by the ordinance committee of the common council. Of the eight present, six were opposed to placing any part of that street in a commercial district, and two, one of whom was the owner of property involved, voted for a business district.

Some of the property owners gave reasons for their attitudes. The ordinance committee is to report at the next meeting of the common council. It was expected that a large number of property owners would be present to argue for the business district because of petitions to the council for extension of the business district on the street. The petitions had been refused on recommendation of the city plan commission.

Two cars were damaged at N. Division and W. Spring-sts late Thursday afternoon in attempting to avoid a collision.

Henry Kleffer, 513 E. Spring-st., while driving west on W. Spring-st., collided with a telephone pole on the northwest corner of N. Division and W. Spring-sts in an effort to avoid a collision with a car owned and driven by E. F. Vurmeister, 1414 Jackson-st.

Mr. Vurmeister was driving north on N. Division-st. Another driver, who until too late Vurmeister turned west on W. Spring-st. to avoid hitting Mr. Kleffer's car and ran over a catch basin, breaking off the left front wheel and turning the car over. Mr. Kleffer's car also was damaged in the collision with the telephone pole.

Neither was hurt.

RURAL TEACHERS
TOLD HOW TO TEACH
BETTER PENMANSHIP*Economy System of Writing
Explained to Mentors at Institute Here

Better penmanship is being stressed at the annual teachers institute which is being held at the courthouse. The meetings started Friday morning and will be concluded Saturday afternoon. Teachers were addressed twice Friday by Mrs. Doris Van Koenel of Chicago, who outlined the methods of teaching the "economy system" of penmanship. The new method already is in use in the public schools. However, this is the first county-wide attempt to standardize penmanship methods along the economy system.

The economy system of penmanship is different from the Palmer method, in that the Palmer method teaches movements, while the economy system does not stress movement as much as much writing of words. Too much attention was placed on circles and other pen movements, according to A. G. Meating, superintendent of Outagamie schools and not enough attention on how to write words. The new system is better calculated to aid students in writing a better hand by explaining the formation and method of writing each letter and how to join them.

E. D. Doudna of Madison, spoke at the Friday morning session on How to Teach Poetry. He was to speak at the afternoon session on Wisconsin History. W. P. Hagman, principal of the Outagamie rural normal school at Kaukauna, spoke Friday morning on Job Analysis Plan in Agriculture.

Methods of recognizing Wisconsin weeds were explained at the afternoon session by Mr. Hagman.

Textbooks now in use do not deal thoroughly with Wisconsin weeds and Principal Hagman prepared a study, which was distributed to the teachers. The work is divided into eight parts: Deciding whether or not weeds are worth consideration; determining what a weed is; determining the kinds of weeds that are troublesome; the history of various types of weeds; how weeds are scattered; why some weed seeds are so much more troublesome than others; control and destruction of weeds; make a collection of weeds and weed seeds.

Miss Esther Exner of Milwaukee, representing the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, was to give a Punch and Judy show Friday afternoon. It was entitled "Know-Naught, the Witch of Ignorance," and dramatized the value of health.

BOYS STEAL WATCH FROM BOAT COOK BUT THEY CAN'T FIND IT

Two boys, each ten years old, were charged with burglary Friday after they had confessed stealing a 23-jewel watch valued at $115, from a barge "Hawit" which was unloading at Combined Locks Sunday. The watch belonged to William Vail, cook on the barge.

The boys confessed stealing the watch, according to Outagamie co. officers, but they said that it had been stolen from the cache where they hid it.

Judge Theodore Berg, on hearing the evidence in the case, released the boys with instructions they were to find the watch and return it to him before Saturday noon.

Both the boys are too young to be tried for theft and the case is puzzling authorities. Each comes from a respectable family at Combined Locks and this is the first time they were in trouble.

CITY, NEARLY BROKE
CAN'T ADVANCE PAY
FOR CITY EMPLOYEES*Policemen and Firemen Will Have to Wait Until Next
Thursday for Pay

Because there is not sufficient money in the city treasury to pay them, Appleton firemen, policemen and street department employees will be unable to receive their semi-monthly checks on Saturday as they had requested so they might have funds for over Sunday and Labor Day. The total payroll of the three departments is slightly in excess of $8,000 and the treasury contains but $4,600. Since the city can borrow money from the banks only upon action of the common council, which does not meet until next Wednesday, the request for the advanced payroll cannot be granted.

The regular pay day for the street department employees is the Thursday after the first and third Wednesday of each month. The regular pay day, therefore, would not be until next Thursday. At that time the employees will receive their salaries for the last two weeks in August. They had asked for the advance pay day so they might have funds for Labor day celebrations.

According to Mayor A. C. Rule, the city has borrowed $46,000. This has been made necessary because of the city's financial straits. The mayor pointed out, will be returned to the city when tax collecting starts next December. The interest on the tax certificates against the property owners is to start from Sept. 1, according to the mayor, in order to partly make up the interest the city is forced to pay on the money borrowed from the banks to meet these obligations. The mayor said that if it had not been necessary to pay street paving bills the city probably would not have borrowed money up to this time.

An advance estimate of the bills to be presented at the next council meeting shows accounts of slightly more than $35,000, including a payment of $15,000 for paving bills. The city treasury is $1,000. It is evident that the city will be forced to borrow at least $30,000 at the next meeting.

Interment will be in Kelo cemetery at Kaukauna.

PUBLIC UTILITIES NOW ESTABLISHED IN PUBLIC FAVOR

Gigantic Combinations Have Resulted in Vital Improve- ments of Age

Madison—(P)—There is no city in the United States today that could divorce itself from its utilities and exist 24 hours, C. L. Broughton, editor of the Sheboygan Press, told delegates to the Wisconsin Utility Association convention in session here Tuesday afternoon.

"There was a time," Mr. Broughton continued, "when cities could easily have dispensed with utilities, weak and haphazardly run, but that time is past. Transportation, water, gas, and electricity are four vital subjects identified with the life of a city."

"In my newspaper activities, extending over a period of more than 40 years, I have seen many abuses, and in more recent years, many changes that have brought the utilities into the foreground, and which are worthy of the support of the investing public. I have seen the horse car replaced by the electric-driven, and electric light and gas consumers growing from a limited few to the thousands in my own county, which is an indication of the same conditions elsewhere."

"The newspaper is a public utility, although not legally recognized as such. The newspaper is like a public utility in its service to the community."

"In a legal sense, however, a newspaper and a public utility are quite different. Before the law, a newspaper is a purely private enterprise, and not a public utility to be regulated, and this is quite as it should be. We want no regulation of newspapers, because regulation of newspapers might too easily degenerate into censorship, and censorship of public opinion would speedily undermine the whole idea of government by the people."

"It is generally conceded that a well managed, properly conducted and regulated public utility is better for a community than several small competing units. This, I believe, was first recognized in the case of the telephone companies and is now considered the best public policy in electric and gas utilities."

"How well we can recall the early struggles of privately-owned utilities in this state. People who put their money in were assessed and finally had to surrender their franchise. Today we have great interlocking utilities forming a network between states, with waterpower development playing a part in these great undertakings."

"Confidence has played a most important part, and this has been encouraged through state regulation. There is such a thing as too much regulation. No utility today can afford to antagonize a community. The good will of that community is its biggest asset, and so we find a friendly relation existing between governing city councils and utility companies. Within my time and yours, we can recall the combats on the floors of council chambers and in committee rooms, and the fault was not always on one side. In those days we found councilmen ready and willing to use the utility as a means of engendering hatred and building up a political machine. Both sides were wrong. Of necessity we must have team work."

"One of the greatest innovations on this regard was the creating of the Wisconsin Rate commission, a sort of an arbitration board to which every

Lewis Praises Miners for Supporting Unions

Indianapolis—(P)—The United Mine Workers of America, by their courage in the present and in past strikes, have helped prevent any "degradation" of American labor, John L. Lewis, international president, declared today in a Labor Day statement.

He asserted the miners will be victorious.

"They never have been defeated, and they are not going to be defeated now," he said.

"There shall be no degradation of labor so long as the courage and the spirit and the determination of the United Mine Workers of America continue at today's high pitch."

"This union, like labor in general, is marching on and on, and it will continue to march on and on, bringing fresh sunshine and happiness into the lives and homes of the toilers of America."

SUFFERS HARDSHIPS
Mr. Lewis asserted that no class of labor has suffered greater hardships than the coal miners of the country who are members of the United Mine Workers of America.

"As we approach Labor Day this year, we do so with deeper appreciation than ever before of the significance of the occasion. It is a recognition of the justice of those great fundamentals upon which organized labor rests, principles for the maintenance and defense of which countless thousands of good, earnest, true men and women have devoted their efforts, their intelligence and their lives."

"Organized labor would lift those who toil from their humble place and elevate them to that dignity which belongs to them by right. It would aid them to enjoy the better things of life. It seeks to bring them to a greater degree of happiness and prosperity, better homes, better education, greater opportunities. And it is proper that labor should pause on this one great day of each year and meditate this high ambition. On this day, the men and women of labor may well pause and think, and rededicate themselves and their lives to a continuation of the struggle."

NOT ALL ALIKE
"Men are not all alike. There are those who would brush aside and ignore the natural rights of others if by so doing they might advance their own personal gain. Unfortunately labor has to deal with some such men, and from the controversies that arise between these self-ambitious men and labor there comes sacrifice, unhappiness and woe. But, even in the face of such conditions, labor does not falter."

Individual with a grievance could go. It has had a tendency to stabilize, to encourage capital to invest, and where in the early days banking houses and Wall Street furnished the capital for a development, today patrons of a utility, those who buy the product, are investors and staunch defenders."

"When the deep waterway is constructed as it will be within the next few years, we will see engineering problems such as you and I never dreamed of. The St. Lawrence will be turned into an electrical world of its own. The confidence that the people have in the public utilities will be a dominant factor in determining the success of this great undertaking. Confidence is a builder. It is an asset. It means more to the men identified with the public utilities of the country than dollars, no matter how many can be herded together."
